Nazism was on the rise in 1930s Los Angeles — so this secret band of veterans launched an undercover operation to smash fascism in Southern California

BY LAURA B. ROSENZWEIG
DESIGNED FOR THE ULTIMATE HIGH

100% Pure Oil • Pesticide-Free • Lab Tested • CO2 Extracted
AUG 26
Join us for a FREE behind-the-scenes tour of The Los Angeles Film School's campus!
RSVP TODAY
lafilm.edu/studiotour • 866-789-6188
NEWS...7
The new USC Village, which offers a Trader Joe’s, a Target and more than a dozen restaurants, feels like an extension of the campus. To some, that’s a problem.
BY HILLEL ARON.

EAT & DRINK...19
Beautiful cooking and a personality crisis at Tallula’s in Pacific Palisades.
BY BESHA RODELL.

GO LA...23
The L.A. Trans Chorus performs a Bowie album in its entirety, Elvis impersonators descend on Garden Grove, the Hammer screens movies about dance and more to do and see in L.A. this week.

CULTURE...26
In CULTURE, the biologist who discovered L.A.’s most famous mountain lion, P-22, wants to help Angelenos embrace the city’s wild side. BY LIZ OHANESIAN.

FILM...29
BILGE EBIRI revisits James Cameron’s Terminator 2: Judgment Day, and APRIL WOLFE reviews Beach Rats, plus music doc Salmen and other movies OPENING THIS WEEK, and YOUR WEEKLY MOVIE TO-DO LIST.

MUSIC...35
JEFF WEISS examines the legacy of soon-to-be-closing weekly club night Funkmosphere, and HENRY ROLLINS wonders what the next Charlotteville might look like. Plus: listings for ROCK & POP, JAZZ & CLASSICAL and more.

ADVERTISING
CLASSIFIED...50
EMPLOYMENT...50
REAL ESTATE/RENTALS...50
BULLETIN BOARD...51

ON THE COVER:
ILLUSTRATION BY PATRICK FARCY

HOLLYWOOD SPIES ... 9
Nazism was on the rise in 1930s L.A.—so this secret band of veterans launched an undercover operation to smash fascism in Southern California.
BY LAURA B. ROSENZWEIG.

LA WEEKLY ISSN#0192-1940 & USPS 461/370 IS PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY LA WEEKLY LP 3861 SEPULVEDA BLVD, CULVER CITY, CA 90230. PERIODICALS POSTAGE PAID AT LOS ANGELES, CA. DOMESTIC SUBSCRIPTIONS: $55 FOR SIX MONTHS & $90 PER YEAR. POSTMASTER: SEND ADDRESS CHANGES TO LA WEEKLY PO BOX 5052, CULVER CITY, CA 90230. LA WEEKLY IS AVAILABLE FREE OF CHARGE IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY, LIMITED TO ONE COPY PER READER. ADDITIONAL COPIES OF THE CURRENT ISSUE OF LA WEEKLY MAY BE PURCHASED FOR $1, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE AT THE LA WEEKLY OFFICE, OUTSIDE LOS ANGELES COUNTY, THE SINGLE-COPY COST OF LA WEEKLY IS $1. LA WEEKLY MAY BE DISTRIBUTED ONLY BY LA WEEKLY’S AUTHORIZED INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS OR LA WEEKLY’S AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS. NO PERSON MAY, WITHOUT PRIOR WRITTEN PERMISSION OF LA WEEKLY, TAKE MORE THAN ONE COPY OF EACH LA WEEKLY WEEKLY ISSUE. FOR ADDITIONAL COPIES OF THE CURRENT ISSUE OF LA WEEKLY MAY BE PURCHASED FOR $1, PAYABLE IN ADVANCE AT THE LA WEEKLY OFFICE, OUTSIDE LOS ANGELES COUNTY, THE SINGLE-COPY COST OF LA WEEKLY IS $1. LA WEEKLY MAY BE DISTRIBUTED ONLY BY LA WEEKLY’S AUTHORIZED INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS OR LA WEEKLY’S AUTHORIZED DISTRIBUTORS. NO PERSON MAY, WITHOUT PRIOR WRITTEN PERMISSION OF THE PUBLISHER, LA WEEKLY, 3861 SEPULVEDA BLVD, CULVER CITY, CA 90230.
JOIN THE LA KINGS FOR THE 2017-18 SEASON!

SEASON STARTS OCTOBER 5
MEMBERSHIPS AND MINI-PLANS ON SALE NOW
STARTING AT $40 PER GAME!

1.888.KINGS.LA LAKINGS.COM/TICKETS
Party with Modelo’s Luchador for your chance to win a pair (2) of weekend passes to KAABOO Del Mar Music Festival 9/15 - 9/17.

#LUCHAMODELO

SPONSORED BY

How to win:

1) Visit laweekly.com/lucha
2) Choose a location to meet Modelo’s Luchador
3) Snap a photo with the Luchador and upload to FB or IG using the #luchamodelo

please visit laweekly.com/lucha for official rules. 1 winner will be selected at random to win (2) GA weekend passes to KAABOO Music Festival 9/15-9/17

*Winner will be selected and notified via social platform through which the photo was posted by 9/7 IS USC’S NEW “VILLAGE” REALLY FOR EVERYONE?

The massive development — with a Trader Joe’s, Target and more than a dozen restaurants — feels like an extension of campus. To some, that’s a problem

BY HILLEL ARON

The University of Southern California has long been criticized for being an inward-looking institution, one that insulates itself from the surrounding neighborhoods of South Los Angeles. Its new expansion project, USC Village, is hailed for changing that. The 15-acre, $700 million housing and retail development brings nearly as many shops) to come — and other businesses (15 restaurants and 157 small businesses. Nearby residents frequented the mall, especially the grocery store, which had lower prices than the Ralph’s on Vermont.

Those commitments weren’t simply handed out freely by the university, says Joe Donlin, director of equitable development at Strategic Actions for a Just Economy, or SAJE. Rather, they were promises extracted by a coalition of community groups during the project’s planning phase.

“There hasn’t been due credit given to the community that really fought for investments that the university agreed to,” Donlin says.

As for the development itself, Shawn Simons, a former neighborhood council member in the area who served on an advisory board for the project, says it doesn’t go as far as it could to be inclusive.

“From my perspective, it really doesn’t have anything that was discussed from a community benefits aspect,” says Simons, who was part of a community advisory board convened by the university during the project’s planning stages. “It really does feel like an offshoot of the campus. It is a monolith of student housing.”

Back in the late 1990s, University Village, which was purchased by USC in 1999, was a drab, beat-up shopping mall. It had ample outdoor parking, a Denny’s, a multiplex, a Starbucks, a Superior Grocery Store and a ton of other small businesses. Nearby residents frequented the mall, especially the grocery store, which had lower prices than the Ralph’s on Vermont.

“THERE ARE CONCERNS ABOUT THE ACCESSIBILITY OF THE NEW UNIVERSITY VILLAGE TO THE LOCAL COMMUNITY. OFTEN LOCAL RESIDENTS DON’T FEEL WELCOME ON CAMPUS, AND SECURITY GUARDS TELL THEM AS MUCH.”

—JOE DONLIN, WITH STRATEGIC ACTIONS FOR A JUST ECONOMY

When university officials began meeting with community groups like SAJE to discuss the project, the groups’ two biggest concerns were housing and jobs.

The new USC Village is dominated by dorms and apartments that will house 2,500 students — but it also has a Trader Joe’s. Students who rented apartments near campus were driving up the prices and displacing residents. The idea of how well the mall served the community took something of a back seat.

The new USC Village is dominated by dorms and apartments that will house 2,500 students. With its faux-Gothic, red-brick facades and fortresslike walls, the architecture takes its cue from the campus, which used to be open to the public and easily accessible from the outside. That changed after a Halloween night shooting in 2012 left four people wounded. Thereafter, the campus became closed to outsiders — those without a campus ID or accompanied by someone with one — after 9 p.m.

Visitors to USC Village will face similar restrictions. No one without a campus ID will be allowed to enter after 10 p.m. Any car parked in the underground garage after 10 p.m. will be ticketed (students living in the village will park in a separate off-site parking garage).

The businesses will have closed by then, but Donlin says the policy doesn’t exactly assuage concerns that the new development is simply an extension of the campus.

“There are concerns about the accessibility of the new University Village to the local community and local residents,” Donlin says. “Often local residents don’t feel welcome on campus, and security guards tell them as much. There is a fear that the new University Village will have the same experience for residents.”

“It is true, the architectural theme is expansion of campus,” says William Marsh, project director for construction at USC. But, he says, “I’ve met a lot of locals. The Trader Joe’s and Target have been extremely well received. I’ve seen people sitting around the fountain.”

And while a new fitness center will be for students and faculty only, the development will have a community room, available free on a first-come first-served basis. And the cobbler from the old mall is returning.

But Donlin also says the newer, higher-end businesses could displace older ones. In fact, that’s already happened. As the student-run Daily Trojan reported in March, Lil Bill’s Bike Shop, an on-campus bike repair shop, was forced to move after the University handed the new bike shop at University Village a noncompete clause.

“We’ve seen far too many black-owned businesses pushed around or pushed out,” Donlin says.

Nevertheless, many local residents are enthusiastic about University Village.

“With everything, there’s a tradeoff,” says Adrienne Kuhre, president of the North Area Neighborhood Development Council. “I’m very excited about it. And I know the community is as well. We’ve wanted a Trader Joe’s for many years. And we have all these wonderful restaurants moving in.”
In the spring of 1933, a police report submitted to LAPD captain William "Red" Hynes noted "considerable quantities" of Nazi literature littering the streets of downtown Los Angeles. A new group in town, Friends of the New Germany (FNG), was thought to be the source of this sudden burst of Nazi propaganda. Over the next several weeks Hynes, captain of LAPD's "Red Squad" intelligence unit, assigned men to keep an eye on the new group. On Aug. 1, 1933, he sent detective R.A. Wellpott undercover to attend FNG's second public meeting.

The meeting was held at 902 S. Alvarado St. in a mansion that had been converted into a German-American community center, of sorts. It housed an old-style German restaurant, the Alt Heidelberg; a new bookshop, the Aryan Bookstore; and a meeting hall. Approximately 100 people gathered in the hall for the meeting. Wellpott reported that a makeshift stage was set up in the hall, with a speaker's podium flanked by an American flag, the imperial German flag and the Nazi (swastika) flag. Fifteen young men dressed in brown shirts, "whose arms bulge with excess power," were scattered about the hall, "guarding" the meeting.

The meeting began with a phonograph recording of a German march. The West Coast leader of Friends of the New Germany, Robert Pape, called the meeting to order. A keynote speaker spoke on "the German-Jewish conflict," explaining that Nazis wanted to prevent the "bastardization of Germany" by eliminating Jews from power. When several people in the audience jumped up in protest, they were swept out of the meeting by the brown-shirted attendants. The meeting resumed with recorded speeches by Hindenburg and Hitler played on the phonograph. At the end of the evening, the attendees rose and gave the Nazi salute while the new German national anthem.
In the spring of 1933, a police report submitted to LAPD captain William “Red” Hynes noted “considerable quantities” of Nazi literature littering the streets of downtown Los Angeles. A new group in town, Friends of the New Germany (FNG), was thought to be the source of this sudden burst of Nazi propaganda. Over the next several weeks Hynes, captain of LAPD’s “Red Squad” intelligence unit, assigned men to keep an eye on the new group. On Aug. 1, 1933, he sent detective R.A. Wellpott undercover to attend FNG’s second public meeting.

The meeting was held at 902 S. Alvarado St. in a mansion that had been converted into a German-American community center, of sorts. It housed an old-style German restaurant, the Alt Heidelberg; a new bookshop, the Aryan Bookstore; and a meeting hall. Approximately 100 people gathered in the hall for the meeting. Wellpott reported that a makeshift stage was set up in the hall, with a speaker’s podium flanked by an American flag, the imperial German flag and the Nazi (swastika) flag. Fifteen young men dressed in brown shirts, “whose arms bulge with excess power,” were scattered about the hall, “guarding” the meeting.

The meeting began with a phonograph recording of a German march. The West Coast leader of Friends of the New Germany, Robert Pape, called the meeting to order. A keynote speaker spoke on “the German-Jewish conflict,” explaining that Nazis wanted to prevent the “bastardization of Germany” by eliminating Jews from power. When several people in the audience jumped up in protest, they were swept out of the meeting by the brown-shirted attendants. The meeting resumed with recorded speeches by Hindenburg and Hitler played on the phonograph. At the end of the evening, the attendees rose and gave the Nazi salute while the new German national anthem...
Schmidt then submitted his first written report on FNG to fellow Americanism Committee member Leon Lewis. Using code name “11,” Schmidt described what he learned about Friends of the New Germany to Lewis. FNG’s mission, Schmidt reported, was to fight communism. FNG leaders, he wrote, “show[ed] me plenty of literature proving without a doubt that Communism was part of the Jewish plan of things and that therefore we must all combine to show the Jew as the author of all our troubles in America and throughout the world.” Pape told Schmidt that the purpose of FNG was to drive Jews and Catholics out of government in the United States and replace them with German-Americans. Pape told Schmidt that he was confident that, once in power, German-Americans would lead the movement to bring Hitlerism into America.

Pape was concerned that veterans misinterpreted his early visits to FNG as an attempt to recruit veterans. Schmidt even had cause to be disillusioned with the U.S. government. Following the war, he had been hospitalized for six years with what today would be considered post-traumatic stress disorder. He suffered from chronic physical and emotional pain as a result of his military service and in 1930 had lost most of his disability pension when, in the wake of the stock market crash, Congress made sweeping budgetary cuts, which significantly reduced benefits to disabled veterans.

Yes, Schmidt should have been the perfect recruit for FNG; but he wasn’t. Schmidt was a loyal and patriotic American. He was a member of the Americanism Committee and one of the city’s several veterans organizations, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War (DAV). Schmidt was committed to the nation’s defense, even as he carried the emotional scars, physical disabilities and financial wounds from his World War I service.

On Aug. 17, 1933, Schmidt went over to FNG headquarters on South Alvarado Street to check out the group. There he met FNG gaukeler Robert Pape, Herman Schwinn and bookstore co-owner Paul Themlitz. Schmidt wrote that he had the distinct impression that there were secrets on the upper floors: “I am sure they have arms and equipment someplace. If it is in the house, I will know it soon.” Schmidt’s early visits to FNG convinced him that Friends of the New Germany was no friend of democracy. He related his early observations to the Disabled American Veterans post commander Captain Carl Sunderland and DAV state adjutant Major Bert Allen. Both men agreed to join Schmidt in his undercover investigation of L.A.’s Nazis.

Sunderland accompanied Schmidt to lunch at the Alt Heidelberg a week after Schmidt’s first visit, in early September, to meet with bookstore owners Themlitz and Hans Winterhalder. At the end of the meeting, Sunderland was convinced that the Nazis were smart, systematic and dangerous: “You know, Schmidt, when you first brought me down here, I thought you were playing a joke on me, and when I first met these guys, I thought it was all kid’s play. Now I’m convinced that if they ever find you out, they are going to massacre you so that your own mother wouldn’t know you.”

These fellows are covering up an awful lot and I surely would like to get to the bottom of this matter.” Sunderland went on: “Such a mob has no place in the United States. These men are not only out to drive the Jews from their public positions and destroy their properties but also they would not stop at starting any kind of trouble in this country which would serve their purpose. … The[se] Nazis are not just against Jews. … [They are] out to overthrow the United States.”

Socializing with FNG officers proved as informative as attending FNG meetings. Alcohol loosened them up. They shared more with their new American friends than they probably should have concerning the secret political objectives of their organization. One evening in late September 1933, the DAV volunteers learned about FNG’s plans for der tag, “the day” when the Nazi revolution would begin in the United States. Sunderland, the Schmidts, and the Allens, with their wives, went out with Winterhalder and two FNG officers for an evening of drinking, dancing and political conversation to the Loralei Restaurant, a German-American beer hall patronized by Nazis. According to reports filed by all three DAV informants, FNG was training a private militia to foment a Nazi-led insurrection in the United States. The plan called for FNG to incite unrest among American workers to hasten a communist insurrection, whereupon FNG and veteran allies would come to the rescue, “consolidat[ing] and march[ing] in military phalanxes to take the government.”

“The kikes … run this country,” stormtroop commander Diederich Gefken told his new DAV friends. Jews, Gefken asserted, were responsible for the rotten deal vets were getting, and he was confident that American veterans were ready to vindicate themselves just as German veterans had done. He told Sunderland, “Thousands of stormtroopers in the U.S. were ready to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with U.S. veterans when the time came … to help them take back the government from Communists and Jews.” The uprising would start in cities where ENJOY FAMILY FUNDAY
AT THE NEW SKYSPACE
LOS ANGELES

Special Family Sunday packages available only on Saturdays and Sundays
$100 INSTANT REBATE COMBO
AUGUST 24TH - AUGUST 31ST, 2017

Dysport &
Restylane

PURCHASE 60+ UNITS OF DYSPORT AT $2.95* PER UNIT

-PROMO PRICE
Restylane-L (1.0 cc) $380 $280
Restylane Lyft (1.0 cc) $395 $295
Restylane Silk (1.4 cc) $395 $295
NEW! Defyne $495 $395
NEW! RLyfe $495 $395

*Recommended 1-3 vials for first treatment
+ Good towards your next purchase of Restylane

BOTOX & Juvederm

PURCHASE 24+ UNITS OF BOTOX AT $8.95* PER UNIT & GET 1 SYRINGE OF JUVEDERM XC AT $8.95* PER VIAL

-PROMO PRICE
ULTRA XC...$320* $20'
ULTRA+ XC...$320* $20'
VOLUMA XC...$595* $30'
VOLBELLA XC...$295* $25'
VOLLURE XC...$395* $10'

Refyne $495 $395
Restylane Lyft (1.0 cc) $395 $295
Restylane Silk (1.4 cc) $395 $295
NEW! Defyne $495 $395
NEW! RLyfe $495 $395

*Recommended 1-3 vials for first treatment
+ Good towards your next purchase of Juvederm kybella

Introducer offer

$495* PER VIAL

- Recommended 1-3 vials for first treatment
- 1-2 for second.

Radiesse

$450

Other Life Changing Treatments

CoolSculpting

FREEZE THE FAT AWAY PERMANENTLY

- NEW Low Prices
- CoolSculpting University Certified
- ALL the New CoolSculpting Handles

NO SURGERY • NO NEEDLES • NO DOWNTIME

PHERENTMINE WEIGHT LOSS PROGRAM

$195

+ FREE AFTER-CARE KIT

LIGHT SHEER AUGUST SPECIALS

60% OFF UNTIL 8/31/17

America's Best Medispa

8 YEARS IN A ROW 2008-2016

130 N. Brand Blvd., Glendale, CA
213.617.1682
125 S. San Pedro St., Los Angeles, CA

Open 7 Days a Week 'til 8pm

Dr. Kojian, Owner

Nazi salute in court, Los Angeles Times, January 1934

FNG was most active, like St. Louis, Chicago, New York and Los Angeles, and then spread across the country. Within two weeks of the insurrection, Protestant churches in the United States, led by the Lutheran Church, would launch a boycott of Jewish businesses. “That will take care of the ‘Goddamn jews’ [sic].”

Gefken, Pape and Schwinn also were eager to infiltrate the Los Angeles National Guard as part of their preparation for der tag. They peppered Schmidt with questions: How many Jews were in the U.S. armed forces? How many men were in the local National Guard? Would the National Guard be loyal in an uprising that targeted only Jews? Gefken and his friend Zimmerman were particularly eager to infiltrate the machine-gun company of the California National Guard to learn the American system of military training firsthand. Pape wanted to get into the National Guard to learn telegraphy. Could Schmidt get FNG men into key National Guard units in Southern California so that they could propagate from within?

FNG had orders to secure the blueprints for the National Guard armories in San Diego and San Francisco. Gefken asked Sunderland if he could get the floor plans of the Southern California armory and of the National Guard aircraft unit in San Diego. Several FNG members had already joined the National Guard in San Francisco, Gefken reported, and had acquired the floor plan of the Northern California armory, which showed the precise storage location of munitions, supplies and weapons in the building.

Sunderland asked Gefken how FNG planned to acquire more arms. Gefken re-
DARE TO INDULGE

Whip out your stretchy pants, because the Fair and food go hand in hand. Get ready to take a break from that diet and indulge in cotton candy ice cream sandwiches, fried hot sauce, frog legs and craft beer.

LACountyFair.com
Anxious? Depressed? Relationship Issues?

We are here to help.

Fuller Psychological and Family Services

Offering psychotherapy for anxiety, depression, and relational problems as well as neuropsychological assessments, all at affordable rates.

- 626.584.5555
- fuller.edu/tps

The clinic of the Fuller School of Psychology

---

UCLA Meth Clinical Trial

Are you using meth? Interested in participating research study?

UCLA is conducting a clinical trial to examine the safety of a medication, pomaglumetad methionil (POMA), and methamphetamine. Investigators at UCLA are conducting this study to find out:

- If POMA is safe and tolerable when used with methamphetamine

This study will enroll people who are currently using methamphetamine and are not looking for treatment to help them stop or reduce their methamphetamine use. Participation includes taking study medications and completing study assessments during continuous overnight stays at the hospital and an outpatient follow-up visit. The inpatient portion of the study involves staying in the hospital for approximately 10 consecutive nights. Participants may be compensated up to $1000.

Interested in learning more? To participate, you must:
- 18 years or older
- Currently using methamphetamine not interested in stopping

Call 310-905-2670 for information on the inpatient meth study or to make an appointment at our research clinic in Santa Monica or visit www.uclacbam.org/meth.

---

UCLA Research Study

Are you interested in participating in a study focused on improving heart health?

If yes, you may be able to join a study where you add an FDA-approved medication to your HIV-regimen to help prevent cardiovascular disease (CVD).

This study is for HIV-positive people who are taking antiretroviral therapy and are interested in strategies to reduce heart disease.

Statins are a group of medicines used to lower cholesterol and triglycerides (fat in the blood) and to prevent problems related to heart disease, such as heart attacks in persons with high risk for heart attacks.

To join you must be:
- Between the ages of 40 and 75
- HIV-positive
- On antiretroviral therapy for at least 6 months
- T-cell count at or above 100

For more information contact the UCLA CARE Center at careoutreach@mednet.ucla.edu or via phone 310-557-9062

---

RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The California Clinical Trials Medical Group, managed by PAREXEL, located in Glendale, CA is currently seeking volunteers to participate in a clinical research trial to evaluate an investigational medication.

For more information, please contact us toll free at +1 855 814 8631 (Monday to Friday between 7 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.).

We are recruiting the following populations:
- Healthy non-smoking males and females
- Ages 50-85

The study involves:
- 1 screening visit
- 3 in-house stays of 3 days/2 nights
- 4 outpatient visits
- 1 follow-up visit

If you qualify and complete the study you may receive up to $7,050. Please reference study #231312.
The anti-Semitic content in this literature ran the gamut from rabid Jew-bashing to more subtle analyses of both contemporary events and world history that disguised their anti-Semitic agenda in the cloak of “academic scholarship.” Schmidt found orders to Pape from New York on managing the shop: Bookshop personnel were all to be educated in National Socialism and were required to have read Mein Kampf. All bookstore personnel were to be American, and women were to do all the selling.

The back rooms of the Aryan Bookstore in Los Angeles housed the headquarters for Friends of the New Germany. Schmidt’s pencil drawing of the store’s layout showed the shop’s small retail space in the front, with a door that led to the back workroom and several private offices for FNG leaders. Schmidt’s daily reports indicated that the back rooms often were busier than the retail space. FNG leaders used the offices to conduct daily business, responding to correspondence from New York, planning their next public rally, and receiving a parade of local allies including German vice consul Georg Gyssling and leaders of domestic right-wing groups the FNG was courting. Schmidt noted that the doors to the offices were padlocked when they were not in use. Alyce Schmidt, who did most of her work for Pape in the reading room, listened in on backroom conversations and reported what she heard to Lewis of the Americanism Committee.

A few weeks after John Schmidt submitted his first report to Lewis on Friends of the New Germany, Lewis called Red Squad captain William “Red” Hynes and asked to meet him. Hynes was in a hurry when Lewis called but told Lewis to meet him in front of the captain’s office at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce building, and Lewis could walk with him to his appointment at police headquarters. Lewis walked the few blocks from his office to the Chamber of Commerce building to meet Hynes. This was not the first time the two men had met. For several months, Lewis and Hynes had been sharing notes on Nazi activity in the city—literally. Hynes shared police reports with Lewis and allowed him to copy them. Lewis, on the other hand, had secured private funding to pay for Hynes’ undercover man. As the two men walked briskly toward police headquarters, Hynes told Lewis that he did not have the funds to continue paying agent “M” anymore. “It will cost us $150 per month in salary plus expenses to maintain this operation,” Hynes told Lewis, “and we just don’t have the money right now.”

Lewis told Hynes that he had discussed the matter with Irving Lipsitch, president of the Jewish Federation of Los Angeles. Lipsitch and Lewis had decided that Lewis, along with an unnamed local merchant and two other Jewish attorneys, would get Hynes the money he needed. “But, I’d rather that ‘M’ stay on your payroll,” Lewis told Hynes. “I do not wish to have any direct dealings with a private detective.” “I don’t blame you,” Hynes replied. “And, of course,” Lewis assured him, “there would be a piece of change in it for you, too.” “That would be fine,” Hynes said.

Was the “piece of change” that Lewis promised Hynes a bribe? Possibly. The LAPD was notoriously corrupt. It is possible that Lewis’ offer of “a piece of change” was simply Lewis playing politics the way politics was played with the Red Squad. There is no further mention of payoffs to Hynes after this meeting. Hynes remained helpful to Lewis until the reform-minded mayor Fletcher Bowron disbanded the Red Squad in 1938.

On March 13, 1934, a parade of cars carrying studio heads, directors, producers, screenwriters and actors rolled past Hillcrest’s unmarked stone gates at 10000 W. Pico Blvd. on the edge of Beverly Hills. The minutes of the meeting, found in the Los Angeles archive, list the attendees, which included top studio executives and filmmakers from MGM, Columbia Pictures, Paramount Studios, RKO, Universal Pictures and United Artists.

The dinner guests took their seats around the banquet table, where they found copies of the anti-Semitic Silver Shirt newspapers, Liberation and The Silver Ranger. Both papers viciously attacked the Jews of Hollywood as enemies of Christian America. The Silver Ranger was published right in Los Angeles, and both were distributed nationally.

After dinner, the group adjourned to a meeting room, where Leon Lewis reported on the behind-the-headlines details of the recent local court case that Lewis and his DAV colleagues had engineered to expose Nazi activity in Los Angeles. Lewis told his audience that the veterans who had testified at the trial had infiltrated FNG under his guidance.

“We knew that the evidence regarding Nazi activity was not properly admissible,” Lewis told his guests, but the judge had allowed evidence into the record anyway for the sake of the publicity the trial would attract.

Lewis went on to explain that the undercover operation had cost him $7,000. Lewis told the moguls that in order to maintain this “anti-defamation work,” their financial support was required. Lewis proposed that a full-time publicity man be hired to work in the tradition of the Anti-Defamation League to fight Nazism in the city. This would relieve Lewis of the task and allow him to return to his law practice, which “had been shot to hell” in the previous six months because of the investigation.

His dinner guests were attentive. The Jewish executives of the motion picture industry did not need a primer on the implications of anti-Semitism for themselves. They had been in the crosshairs of anti-Semitic attacks for more than a decade from Protestant and Catholic groups concerned that motion pictures, in the hands of “former pants-pressers and button-holers,” presented a direct threat to American virtue. In fact, just six months earlier, Catholic Church leaders had organized a nationwide protest against the industry and threatened a national boycott of motion pictures if the Jews of Hollywood did not capitulate to a production code written by, and monitored by, the church’s chosen representatives. At a meeting with the archbishop of Los Angeles in 1933, the church’s lay representative, attorney Joseph Scott,
A clinical research study is studying an investigational medication to see if it may help people stay asleep at night.

Qualified study volunteers who participate may receive:
- Reimbursement for time and travel

You may qualify to participate if you:
- Are a woman age 55 or older OR a man age 65 or older
- Wake up often during the night, or too early in the morning
- Have had insomnia at least 3 times a week for at least 3 months

Contact your local study doctor’s office to learn more

Santa Monica Clinical Trials by phone: 310-586-0843 or email: research@smclinicaltrials.com

> 15) warned the moguls that “the dirty motion pictures they were making, along with other invidious activities on the part of the Jews, were serving to build up an enormous case against the Jews in the eyes of the American people.” Scott reminded them that certain groups in America were sympathetic to the Nazi purpose and were organizing to attack Jews in America, and that “what was going on in Germany could happen here.”

Scott’s warning may have been ringing in their ears that night at Hillcrest as they discussed Lewis’ proposal. Rabbi Magnin, Judge Roth, Marco Hellman and Irving Thalberg all spoke up in support of the proposed program. Louis B. Mayer was emphatic about continuing the operation: “There can be no doubt as to the necessity of carrying on, and I for one am not going to take it lying down. Two things are required, namely money and intelligent direction. It is the duty of the men present to help in both directions.”

Following Mayer’s comments, MGM producer Harry Rapf moved that a committee composed of one man from each studio be appointed. Each studio selected a representative, resulting in a studio subcommittee: Irving Thalberg (MGM), Harry Cohen (Columbia), Henry Henigson (Universal), Joseph Schenck (20th Century), Jack Warner (Warner Bros.), Emanuel Cohen (Paramount), Sol Wurtzel (Fox) and Pandro Berman (RKO). The members of the new Studio Committee publicly pledged to support the fact-finding work for one year. Thalberg committed MGM to $3,500. Emanuel Cohen committed Paramount to the same amount and promised to speak to Jack Warner about a similar pledge. Universal pledged $2,500, and Berman promised that RKO would contribute $1,500, pointing out that RKO had only eight Jewish executives. The smaller studios — Fox, 20th Century and United Artists — each pledged $1,500. Phil Goldstone and David Selznick were asked to raise $3,500 each from agents and independent producers. In less than an hour, Lewis had secured $22,000 in pledges. The studio committee itself met monthly to review the content of any production that might exacerbate the rising tide of anti-Jewish sentiment in the United States.

The threat of Nazism catalyzed the wealthiest Jews of Los Angeles to political action. Beginning in March 1934 and continuing through the end of World War II, the Los Angeles Jewish Community Committee convened every Friday to hear reports from informants on escalating Nazi activity in the city and to deliberate on their response.

It took Lewis six long months to secure the funding. In doing so, he bridged a social chasm between the city’s Jewish community and an unlikely political partner, the city’s veterans, and transformed those former soldiers into “Hollywood’s spies.”

Do you have a line on a new bar that the masses haven’t yet discovered? An Instagrammer whose images you want to inhabit? A salon whose stylists deserve heaps of praise? Then make your voice heard in our annual Best of L.A. issue!

Voting is open now in nearly 70 categories, from Best Record Store to Best Podcast, Best Food Truck to Best Street Artist. And we’re adding something new to the mix this year — a celebration of L.A. neighborhoods. So if you have a favorite ‘hood for cheap eats, for nightlife or for vintage shopping, we want to hear about that, too.

Polls will be open through Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Cast your votes at readerschoice.laweekly.com — and look for the winners to be revealed in early October.
From every corner of L.A. — Boyle Heights to Beverly Hills, NoHo to Venice — L.A.’s buzziest restaurants big and small are coming together for five food events over Labor Day weekend. Enjoy unbelievable food, wine seminars, cooking demos, great spirits and good company.

Get tickets: latimes.com/TheTaste
LA Times subscribers save $25 on Saturday and Sunday events.
BY BESHA RODELL

I could write a book about the issues with Yelp’s rating system, the history of distrust between the website and the restaurant community, accusations that ratings are manipulated by the company for its own economic gain, and the many real-world impacts that low or high Yelp ratings have on restaurants. But I’m not here to write that book. I’m here to review Tallula’s, the newest restaurant from Josh Loeb and Zoe Nathan, the chefs-turned-restaurateurs who are also behind Rustic Canyon, Huckleberry, Milo & Olive, Cassia, Sweet Rose Creamery and Esters Wine Shop & Bar.

Unfortunately, since Tallula’s opened in May, its most discussed attribute has not been its modern Mexican cooking. Instead, people have been talking about its Yelp rating.

Very high Yelp ratings are common, even among fast food restaurants and the like. The reason Tallula’s rating is notable is because it’s comparatively low. This is odd for a number of reasons, not least of which that Loeb and Nathan are highly regarded. The reason Tallula’s rating is not even partially resemble a dip. It’s a bean soup with a lot of cheese in it.

For instance: There are nachos. But rather than salsa or slaw, the crowning ingredient is something called “Mexican sauerkraut,” made from thin strips of purple cabbage. The dish is a bizarre masterpiece, a melding of Mexican and German and British ideas (the aioli’s malt coming from malt vinegar, which gives fish-and-chips context to the sandwich). The fish is meaty, the aioli is creamy, the sauerkraut is funk and tangy, the tortilla has that deep corn muskiness that only comes from incredible masa. It’s probably confusing as hell to the person who came here expecting regular fish tacos.

Equally as mind-boggling (in a good way): the bowl of tender chopped squash, scattered over a sticky sludge of spicy eggplant and punctuated with crunchy spears of kohlrabi, lime beans, purple basil and nectarine. There’s not quite enough of the sweet stone fruit on the plate to all the ingredients to come together often enough, but when they do it’s an outrageous combination of texture and flavor and ocean and land and orchard.

If you came here looking for a dumbed-down meal of melty cheese, you’re obviously unlikely to order the squid and eggplant and nectarine dish. But you might order the queso fundido, and you’d likely be intensely baffled if you did. It comes with three puffy tortillas — not nearly enough to help you consume the bowl of beans and cheese you’ve been served — but that’s almost beside the point. This is not cheese dip. It’s not cheese melted over other ingredients. It’s a bowl of (very delicious) vaquero and scarlet runner beans, cooked with tomatoes and spices, and with gobs of queso panela and Oaxaca cheese strewn throughout. Most of it is in gobs at the bottom of the bowl of beans. You have to continuously mix it vigorously for it to even partially resemble a dip. It’s a bean soup with a lot of cheese in it.

If This is a Neighborhood Restaurant, It Might Be in the Wrong Neighborhood

IF THIS IS A NEIGHBORHOOD RESTAURANT, IT MIGHT BE IN THE WRONG NEIGHBORHOOD.

артикул с large-screen TV and a margaritas-and-guacamole menu that screams “CANTINA” in the old-school American sense of the word, the type of cheese-drenched, combo-special-having place that we all know and some of us love. In many regards Tallula’s is that restaurant. And in many ways it is not.

For instance: There are nachos. But they’re constructed with house-made chips and come drizzled with buttermilk cream and scattered with spicy pickled vegetables, as well as melted cotija and Oaxaca cheeses. They are neither as gloppy nor as tawdry as the nachos most people (and their children) are used to, but they also aren’t obviously fancy. They’re a little… confusing.

The key executive chef Mario Alberto, who was the longtime chef at Ysabel and Laurel Hardware. Jeremy Fox also is involved as a business partner and an overseer of culinary operations. Fox is the executive chef at Rustic Canyon and was this year nominated for a James Beard Award in the Best Chef in the West category. Some of the food — a lot of the food! — lives up to the promise of the two chefs’ talent. In fact, some of it is a wonderful collision of tradition and creativity and gorgeous ingredients.

The only tacos on the menu are served on small tortillas made from heritage blue corn, topped with a slick of malt aioli and grilled chunks of juicy swordfish. Rather than salsa or slaw, the crowning ingredient is something called “Mexican sauerkraut,” made from thin strips of purple cabbage. The dish is a bizarre masterpiece, a melding of Mexican and German and British ideas (the aioli’s malt coming from malt vinegar, which gives fish-and-chips context to the sandwich). The fish is meaty, the aioli is creamy, the sauerkraut is funky and tangy, the tortilla has that deep corn muskiness that only comes from incredible masa. It’s probably confusing as hell to the person who came here expecting regular fish tacos.

Equally as mind-boggling (in a good way): the bowl of tender chopped squash, scattered over a sticky sludge of spicy eggplant and punctuated with crunchy spears of kohlrabi, lime beans, purple basil and nectarine. There’s not quite enough of the sweet stone fruit on the plate to all the ingredients to come together often enough, but when they do it’s an outrageous combination of texture and flavor and ocean and land and orchard.

If you came here looking for a dumbed-down meal of melty cheese, you’re obviously unlikely to order the squid and eggplant and nectarine dish. But you might order the queso fundido, and you’d likely be intensely baffled if you did. It comes with three puffy tortillas — not nearly enough to help you consume the bowl of beans and cheese you’ve been served — but that’s almost beside the point. This is not cheese dip. It’s not cheese melted over other ingredients. It’s a bowl of (very delicious) vaquero and scarlet runner beans, cooked with tomatoes and spices, and with gobs of queso panela and Oaxaca cheese strewn throughout. Most of it is in gobs at the bottom of the bowl of beans. You have to continuously mix it vigorously for it to even partially resemble a dip. It’s a bean soup with a lot of cheese in it.

If This is a Neighborhood Restaurant, It Might Be in the Wrong Neighborhood

IF THIS IS A NEIGHBORHOOD RESTAURANT, IT MIGHT BE IN THE WRONG NEIGHBORHOOD.

артикул with a large-screen TV and a margaritas-and-guacamole menu that screams “CANTINA” in the old-school American sense of the word, the type of cheese-drenched, combo-special-having place that we all know and some of us love. In many regards Tallula’s is that restaurant. And in many ways it is not.

For instance: There are nachos. But they’re constructed with house-made chips and come drizzled with buttermilk cream and scattered with spicy pickled vegetables, as well as melted cotija and Oaxaca cheeses. They are neither as gloppy nor as tawdry as the nachos most people (and their children) are used to, but they also aren’t obviously fancy. They’re a little… confusing.

The key executive chef Mario Alberto, who was the longtime chef at Ysabel and Laurel Hardware. Jeremy Fox also is involved as a business partner and an overseer of culinary operations. Fox is the executive chef at Rustic Canyon and was this year nominated for a James Beard Award in the Best Chef in the West category. Some of the food — a lot of the food! — lives up to the promise of the two chefs’ talent. In fact, some of it is a wonderful collision of tradition and creativity and gorgeous ingredients.

The only tacos on the menu are served on small tortillas made from heritage blue corn, topped with a slick of malt aioli and grilled chunks of juicy swordfish. Rather than salsa or slaw, the crowning ingredient is something called “Mexican sauerkraut,” made from thin strips of purple cabbage. The dish is a bizarre masterpiece, a melding of Mexican and German and British ideas (the aioli’s malt coming from malt vinegar, which gives fish-and-chips context to the sandwich). The fish is meaty, the aioli is creamy, the sauerkraut is funky and tangy, the tortilla has that deep corn muskiness that only comes from incredible masa. It’s probably confusing as hell to the person who came here expecting regular fish tacos.

Equally as mind-boggling (in a good way): the bowl of tender chopped squash, scattered over a sticky sludge of spicy eggplant and punctuated with crunchy spears of kohlrabi, lime beans, purple basil and nectarine. There’s not quite enough of the sweet stone fruit on the plate to all the ingredients to come together often enough, but when they do it’s an outrageous combination of texture and flavor and ocean and land and orchard.

If you came here looking for a dumbed-down meal of melty cheese, you’re obviously unlikely to order the squid and eggplant and nectarine dish. But you might order the queso fundido, and you’d likely be intensely baffled if you did. It comes with three puffy tortillas — not nearly enough to help you consume the bowl of beans and cheese you’ve been served — but that’s almost beside the point. This is not cheese dip. It’s not cheese melted over other ingredients. It’s a bowl of (very delicious) vaquero and scarlet runner beans, cooked with tomatoes and spices, and with gobs of queso panela and Oaxaca cheese strewn throughout. Most of it is in gobs at the bottom of the bowl of beans. You have to continuously mix it vigorously for it to even partially resemble a dip. It’s a bean soup with a lot of cheese in it.
GOOD MEASURE, JOURNEYMEN EXPAND LOCAL RESTAURANT SCENE

Atwater Village recently saw two new restaurants open in the same week — right across the street from each other.

Good Measure is a restaurant-meets-wine bar from the guy behind Bar Covell and Augustine, and Journeymen is the novel concept from two Gjelina vets (in the space that formerly housed Canelé).

This walkable stretch of Glendale Boulevard in Atwater also is home to falafel favorite Dune, sophisticated Italian spot All’Acqua and renowned bakery Proof.

Good Measure and Journeymen now have grabbed a seat at this very lively table, and here’s what they expect to bring to it.

Good Measure

Good Measure owner and sommelier Matthew Kaner is also the man behind Los Feliz’s Bar Covell, Sherman Oaks’ Augustine and Palm Springs’ Dead or Alive. His newest venture has an entirely different by-the-bottle wine list from his other two L.A. spots, with a larger food menu.

“Good Measure is basically a synthesis of what we’ve done at Covell and Augustine. It’s a restaurant with wine bar tendencies,” Kaner says. “One of the big things I’ve learned in my years is that people want to have the assurance that they will have a table, so we built a spot that can handle reservations as well as walk-ins.”

The menu, by former BLD and Mohawk Bend chef Mike Garber, offers such wine-bar staples as charcuterie, grilled bread and olives, and adds substantial entrees including a burger with “soft melty cheese” and lamb belly with polenta. Brunch offers mainstays such as avocado toast with pickled chilies, eggs any style and a brunch burger with tomato jam and cheddar.

As for the wine, Kaner says Good Measure has fewer by-the-glass options than Covell or Augustine, and by fewer he means 35 versus 150, which will rotate every three to four weeks. The 150-plus bottle menu will turn over weekly, and can be discussed at length at the “somm bar.”

“The somm bar is a five-seat bar I imagined the second I first walked into the space, where our sommelier gives you a guided experience much more akin to the way we do our service at Covell,” Kaner explains. “This is where you’ll want to get a seat to ask a bunch of questions, get that Instagram photo and taste things you had never heard of before.”

3224 Glendale Blvd., Atwater Village; (323) 426-9461, goodmeasurela.com.

Journeymen

David Wilcox and Guy Tabibian, both formerly of Venice’s Gjelina, are experimenting with a unique business model in the former Canelé space. They’ve adopted the gratuity-free concept and roll tax into their pricing. Their cross-training policy means staff don’t stay in their own lanes; they’re trained in all aspects of the business. The service structure includes counter ordering, table service and dim sum–style chits.

“The idea comes from wanting to run an ethical business across the board with transparency,” Wilcox says. “That means training our staff to understand and operate the business holistically. The name Journeymen implies apprenticeship and the stages of learning we are all engrossed in.”

Customers can expect a rotating menu based on locally farmed vegetables, as well as a rabbit and pork terrine, hanger steak with blue cheese, roasted oyster mushrooms and grilled okra. Brunch is planned for the near future. For booze, there is beer and wine only, with a focus on natural wines.

“We bake our bread here. We make our charcuterie. We ferment,” Wilcox adds. “We source our ingredients using the relationships I’ve made with farmers, ranchers and purveyors in the eight years I have lived in California.”

The three-part service flow is a bit off the beaten path, like three restaurant styles rolled into one. It goes something like this: Order at the counter, take a seat, receive traditional table service, order additional items using a dim sum chit.

“Guests are greeted by a maître d’ and guided to the counter where they order,” Wilcox explains. “Beyond the full menu, there are nightly pintxos (small bites) that can be ordered. We use a dim sum-style chit to mark their orders and add on as desired, and they settle at the table with us using a mobile device. Cooks also interact and run food along with a designated runner. This will develop further as we continue to cross-train our staff.” 3219 Glendale Blvd., Atwater Village; (323) 284-8879, journeymenla.com.

—Rebecca Pardess

Tintorera’s Ambitious Wine and Cocktail Programs Are as Mexican as the Food
If you’re one of those Angelenos who takes advantage of our proximity to Tijuana and Mexico’s Valle de Guadalupe, you probably know that while the food of the region is amazing, the booze is pretty exciting as well. At Tintorera, the new Silver Lake restaurant from Maycoll Calderón of Mexico City’s much-lauded Huset restaurant, there’s a focus on seafood and woodfire-cooked meats, but the chef is also taking the booze side of things very seriously.

Calderón — who is a certified sommelier — is curating the wine list himself, with a focus on the wines of the Valle de Guadalupe. “One of our goals at Tintorera is to encourage our guests to try Mexican wine,” he says. “Mexico is now what Napa was 20 or 25 years ago. Valle de Guadalupe is producing some incredible wines, and people are investing in technology now to make them even better. Many people in the United States have no idea they are producing such good wine in Mexico because they haven’t had the opportunity to try it.”

Calderón and his partners hope to change that with a list that spans the globe but includes many Mexican wines — a rarity in Los Angeles. Great mezcal isn’t quite as rare here — restaurants such as Petty Cash and Scopa Italian Roots have fantastic selections — but it’s a spirit with endless variety, and Tintorera’s focus on mezcal cocktails is a welcome addition. Calderón has brought in accomplished Mexico City barman David Mora to run the restaurant’s cocktail program, which is twofold in its aim. Outside, more refreshing cocktails are served that are meant to pair with the food. Indoors, Mora is overseeing a speakeasy-style bar with more experimental craft cocktails.

Let’s hope this trend of exciting Mexican drinks (to go with our wealth of exciting Mexican food) continues.

—Besha Rodell

Tintorera, 2815 Sunset Blvd., Silver Lake; tintorera.la.
Unsettled explores over 200 artworks, spanning 2000 years, traversing time and space across the Greater West.
Curated by JoAnne Northrup with Ed Ruscha

Premier Sponsor Louise A. Tarble Foundation
Lead Sponsor Wayne And Miriam Prim
Major Sponsors Anne Brockinton Lee;
Stacie and Charles N. Mathewson;
Mercedes-Benz of Reno;
RBC Wealth Management and City National Bank

Japanese Cultural Event
"Matsuri" the Festival
Thursday, August 31, 5-9PM

Live music, Food & Drinks, Kimono dressing & Photo session etc.
Special Performance by Guitarist Toshi Yanagi of ABC’s “Jimmy Kimmel Live”!

Try on Kimono!
Meishi Smile (DJ Set)

Free Admission!
For details, visit www.jflalc.org

The Japan Foundation, Los Angeles
5700 Wilshire Blvd. Suite 100
Los Angeles, CA 90036

Donald W. Reynolds Center for the Visual Arts
E. L. Wiegand Gallery
160 West Liberty Street in downtown Reno, Nevada | nevadaart.org
FRI 8/25

FILM

Beast Mode

In 1990, Depeche Mode famously caused a riot outside the Warehouse record store on La Cienega while promoting Violator, their biggest-selling album. In 1988, they played to more than 65,000 people at the Rose Bowl, their biggest concert. Directed by David Dawkins, Chris Hegedus and D.A. Pennebaker (the man behind Monterey Pop, Bob Dylan: Don’t Look Back and Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars), 1989 documentary Depeche Mode: 101 captures not only the band’s performance—the 101st of their worldwide tour—but the eight lucky kids who won a New York radio contest and got to ride cross-country and meet the group at the show. If you’re a Depeche Mode devotee of a certain age, the doc is a joyful time capsule of big hair, biker shorts and fun than your average Instagram photo. With food trucks. Hear, the event is hosted by Richard Blade, Depeche Mode fandom. Hosted by Eat See Had and will forever have the monopoly on experience IRL. It’s also proof that L.A. has to offer. This year, Artopia takes over the 101st of their worldwide performances in L.A. WEST WEEKLY. —Gwynedd Stuart

MUSIC

Wish Upon a Stardust

In the wake of Trump’s proposed ban on transgender troops from the military, it’s even more crucial to support the trans community. Led by artistic director Lindsay Deaton, the Trans Chorus of Los Angeles is the largest chorus of trans and gender-nonconforming performers in the world. The chorus debuted its first staged concert in April at the L.A. LGBT Center, where 25 members paid tribute to David Bowie, one of music’s greatest LGBT icons, by singing the entirety of The Rise and Fall of Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars. Following those sold-out shows, TCLA’s singers once again bring out their inner rock-star aliens in these encore performances of the 1972 classic, complete with costumes, as well as cover songs by other artists. L.A. LGBT Center’s Renberg Theatre. 1125 N. McCadden Place, Hollywood; Sat., Aug. 26, 8 p.m.; Sun., Aug. 27, 2 p.m.; $35. (323) 860-7300, lalgbc.org. —Siran Babayan

FOOD & DRINK

Wine About It

The Los Angeles Food & Wine Festival may be the biggest (it’s certainly the flashiest) food event of the year for high rollers. You medium rollers can buy tickets à la carte, rather than for the whole four-day event. Saturday is the marquee day, featuring the Lexus Grand Tasting Event at Barker Hangar in Santa Monica. Two hundred wineries will be pouring their elixirs, and about 25 chefs—all ready to sign books and take photos—will be serving up food samples. Later that evening, at Live on Grand downtown, about 30 chefs will serve up bites of their best-known dishes, while Wyclef Jean serenades everyone from the stage. Barker Hangar, 3021 Airport Ave., Santa Monica; Sat., Aug. 26, noon-3 p.m.; $175. lafw.com. —Katherine Spiers sun 8/27

FANDOM

It’s Good to Be King

If you enjoy watching aging men with stick-on sideburns swivel their pelvises, the Elvis Festival in Garden Grove is the place for you. The King of Rock & Roll died 40 years ago this month, and for 18 of those years, a dedicated group of fanatics has hosted this annual day of tribute bands, tribute art and tribute peanut butter-and-banana sandwiches. Besides the slate of professional impersonators, this year’s fest features the Créme de la King Finals, a karaoke contest featuring the top 12 singers from previous semi-finals. There’s also a gallery of Elvis tattoo art, Elvis collectibles, the King of Cadillacs car show and a performance by Krazy Kirk and the Hillbillies, which may be the best band name ever. Elvis would approve. Main Street between Garden Grove Boulevard and Acacia Parkway, Garden Grove; Sun., Aug. 27, 9 a.m.-6 p.m.; free. (714) 267-4657, facebook.com/elvisfestival. —Gwynedd Stuart sat 8/26

ARTS

Meet Me at the Station

A wide-ranging pop-up, an appearance by found-footage freaks Everything Is Terrible! and a neon light installation by the fabricator who designed the “Celebrate” window on La Cienega while promoting Beast Mode, Los Angeles is the largest chorus of trans and gender-nonconforming performers in the world. The chorus debuted its first staged concert in April at the L.A. LGBT Center, where 25 members paid tribute to David Bowie, one of music’s greatest LGBT icons, by singing the entirety of The Rise and Fall of Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars. Following those sold-out shows, TCLA’s singers once again bring out their inner rock-star aliens in these encore performances of the 1972 classic, complete with costumes, as well as cover songs by other artists. L.A. LGBT Center’s Renberg Theatre. 1125 N. McCadden Place, Hollywood; Sat., Aug. 26, 8 p.m.; Sun., Aug. 27, 2 p.m.; $35. (323) 860-7300, lalgbc.org. —Siran Babayan

FOOD & DRINK

Wine About It

The Los Angeles Food & Wine Festival may be the biggest (it’s certainly the flashiest) food event of the year for high rollers. You medium rollers can buy tickets à la carte, rather than for the whole four-day event. Saturday is the marquee day, featuring the Lexus Grand Tasting Event at Barker Hangar in Santa Monica. Two hundred wineries will be pouring their elixirs, and about 25 chefs—all ready to sign books and take photos—will be serving up food samples. Later that evening, at Live on Grand downtown, about 30 chefs will serve up bites of their best-known dishes, while Wyclef Jean serenades everyone from the stage. Barker Hangar, 3021 Airport Ave., Santa Monica; Sat., Aug. 26, noon-3 p.m.; $175. lafw.com. —Katherine Spiers mon 8/28

STORYTELLING

Flutter By

The Moth GrandSLAM: Growing Pains features previous StorySLAM champions telling how they broke free of whatever cocoon they were hot-rodding in at the time...
CANNING 411: Build a Cannabis Business in California’s Legal Market

Are you curious about starting a cannabis business?

Our next Educational Seminar is Saturday Sept. 9th in Pasadena from 10am-4:30pm.

Services include a range of one-day seminars, courses, workshops, and classes on all aspects of the industry.

- Our Cannabis focused Attorney Charles Houghton will lead you through the challenges and successes you may face in your new business. Mr. Houghton will also review California’s new legislative framework for Medical and Adult use businesses under MAURCSA.

- Our Cannabis Tax Strategy Expert Joseph Earle will lead you through the murky waters of cash and cannabis. They will give an in depth overview on 280E as well as help strategize for your Cannabis business.

- Our Cannabis focused consultant Geoffrey Taylor will review compliance as well as provide an overview on business operational plans required for local licensing.

- Our Financial Advisor and Risk Transference Expert Bobby Uppal will review risk management, financial plans often associated with the cannabis industry, investment planning for your future business, and business succession planning.

Clear Horizon Management Group

California Cannabis Business Management Services

REGISTER NOW!
1.866.660.2794 or email: support@clearhorizonmg.com
www.clearhorizonmg.com

WHO WANTS TO MAKE A DEAL?

Come prepared with energy, enthusiasm, and a unique costume to make a deal with Wayne Brady!

We are ready to give away millions of dollars in prizes including cars, vacations and Cash!!!

Contact the Contestant Department for dates and times.

Call 888-533-2550 or email LetsMakeADealTickets.com

FOOTBALL IS BACK! SCORE BIG WITH A TOP TIER TREATS CAKE FOR THE GAME

Free Game Show Tickets for...

Let’s Make a Deal

11511 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90064

top-tier-treats.com
310.478.1971

CANNIAS 411: Build a Cannabis Business in California’s Legal Market

Are you curious about starting a cannabis business?

Our next Educational Seminar is Saturday Sept. 9th in Pasadena from 10am-4:30pm.

Services include a range of one-day seminars, courses, workshops, and classes on all aspects of the industry.

- Our Cannabis focused Attorney Charles Houghton will lead you through the challenges and successes you may face in your new business. Mr. Houghton will also review California’s new legislative framework for Medical and Adult use businesses under MAURCSA.

- Our Cannabis Tax Strategy Expert Joseph Earle will lead you through the murky waters of cash and cannabis. They will give an in depth overview on 280E as well as help strategize for your Cannabis business.

- Our Cannabis focused consultant Geoffrey Taylor will review compliance as well as provide an overview on business operational plans required for local licensing.

- Our Financial Advisor and Risk Transference Expert Bobby Uppal will review risk management, financial plans often associated with the cannabis industry, investment planning for your future business, and business succession planning.

Clear Horizon Management Group

California Cannabis Business Management Services

REGISTER NOW!
1.866.660.2794 or email: support@clearhorizonmg.com
www.clearhorizonmg.com

WHO WANTS TO MAKE A DEAL?

Come prepared with energy, enthusiasm, and a unique costume to make a deal with Wayne Brady!

We are ready to give away millions of dollars in prizes including cars, vacations and Cash!!!

Contact the Contestant Department for dates and times.

Call 888-533-2550 or email LetsMakeADealTickets.com

FOOTBALL IS BACK! SCORE BIG WITH A TOP TIER TREATS CAKE FOR THE GAME

Free Game Show Tickets for...

Let’s Make a Deal

11511 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90064
top-tier-treats.com
310.478.1971

CANNIBA 411: Build a Cannabis Business in California’s Legal Market

Are you curious about starting a cannabis business?

Our next Educational Seminar is Saturday Sept. 9th in Pasadena from 10am-4:30pm.

Services include a range of one-day seminars, courses, workshops, and classes on all aspects of the industry.

- Our Cannabis focused Attorney Charles Houghton will lead you through the challenges and successes you may face in your new business. Mr. Houghton will also review California’s new legislative framework for Medical and Adult use businesses under MAURCSA.

- Our Cannabis Tax Strategy Expert Joseph Earle will lead you through the murky waters of cash and cannabis. They will give an in depth overview on 280E as well as help strategize for your Cannabis business.

- Our Cannabis focused consultant Geoffrey Taylor will review compliance as well as provide an overview on business operational plans required for local licensing.

- Our Financial Advisor and Risk Transference Expert Bobby Uppal will review risk management, financial plans often associated with the cannabis industry, investment planning for your future business, and business succession planning.

Clear Horizon Management Group

California Cannabis Business Management Services

REGISTER NOW!
1.866.660.2794 or email: support@clearhorizonmg.com
www.clearhorizonmg.com

WHO WANTS TO MAKE A DEAL?

Come prepared with energy, enthusiasm, and a unique costume to make a deal with Wayne Brady!

We are ready to give away millions of dollars in prizes including cars, vacations and Cash!!!

Contact the Contestant Department for dates and times.

Call 888-533-2550 or email LetsMakeADealTickets.com

FOOTBALL IS BACK! SCORE BIG WITH A TOP TIER TREATS CAKE FOR THE GAME

Free Game Show Tickets for...

Let’s Make a Deal

11511 West Pico Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90064
top-tier-treats.com
310.478.1971
to experience the wrenching transformations that made them better human beings.

From explosions in the heart to expulsions from the head, Alisha Brophy, Jen Curcio, Rachel Duboff, Katy Duff, Kate Romero, Nick Ross, Josh Silberman, Samantha Spitalne, Moses Storm and Matt Struski gather together to impart their deathless life lessons so that you, too, may become gird your loins for the changes that are doubtless ahead.

The Regent, 448 S. Main St, downtown; Mon., Aug. 28, 8 p.m. (doors 7 p.m.); $25. (323) 294-5727, spacelandpresents.com. —David Cotner

BOOKS

The Big 5-0

At McSweeney’s 50th Issue Release Party, authors Brian Evenson, Carson Mell, Kevin Moffett, Corinna Vallianatos and Sarah Walker appear to read new work that commemorates and celebrates 20 years of some of the best contemporary writing from the McSweeney’s house of publishing, founded by Dave Eggers. Expect another fine issue of stories, manifestos, comics and other shouts from the abattoir from 50 contributors — everyone from Jonathan Lethem to Sherman Alexie to Carrie Brownstein — gracing this epic monument to artistic creativity that makes the world somewhat bearable sometimes.

Skylight Books, 1818 N. Vermont Ave., Los Feliz; Tue., Aug. 29, 7:30 p.m.; free, book is $30. (323) 680-1175, skylightbooks.com. —David Cotner

DANCE

Stepping Out

This week the popular dance film series Shake It Off spotlights a college-bound street dancer and a male stripper. The emerging hit Step has put stepping back in the spotlight, but while the current film focuses on young females striving for college, 2007 hit Stomp the Yard captured the world of stepping competitions in the story of a troubled male street dancer whose college fraternity is deeply involved in stepping competitions. The 2015 film Magic Mike XXL is a sequel to the original story of male strippers, this time blending dance with a buddy road film as the title character comes out of retirement and rounds up a crew for a final performance.

UCLA Hammer Museum, 10899 Wilshire Blvd., Westwood; Stomp the Yard, Wed., Aug. 30, 7:30 p.m.; Magic Mike XXL, Thu., Aug. 31, 7:30 p.m.; free. (310) 443-7000, hammer.ucla.edu. —Ann Haskins

COMEDY

Test Tube

For every cute video of a cat playing a harmonica, there’s a sad video of a cat battling osteoporosis. NerdMelt’s new monthly show Follow That combines live comedy with screenings of all kinds of emotional clips from the Internet usually involving disabled animals, servicemen reuniting with families or babies being able to hear for the first time, in addition to commercials or scenes from film and TV. Hosts Matt Lieb and Jason Webb will ask the audience to pick a video category. Then comedians Mike Lawrence, Sofiya Alexandra, Taylor Tomlinson, Matt Kirshen and Andre Hyland will watch the video and perform stand-up in eight minutes or less inspired by the video, which may or may not reduce them to tears. Bring tissues.

Nerdstix Showroom at Meltdown Comics, 7522 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood; Thu., Aug. 31, 9-10:30 p.m.; $8. (323) 851-7223, nerdstixla.com. —Siran Babayan

FILM

Classic Case

Summer is the time for studio blockbusters at the multiplex, but the Cinecon Classic Film Festival provides an alternative for vintage movie lovers. The Labor Day weekend tradition includes rare and restored comedies, dramas, musicals, Westerns and animation dating as far back as 1918. There are celebrity appearances, awards and a memorabilia show at the Loews Hollywood Hotel that displays books, posters, postcards, DVDs and other collectibles.

The highlight of this 53rd edition is the opening-night reception and screening of the 1928 silent short Steamboat Bill Jr., starring Buster Keaton, accompanied by a live period score. The film is preceded by a tribute to Keaton friend and 102-year-old actor-director Norman Lloyd (Hitchcock’s Saboteur and Spellbound, St. Elsewhere), who will receive the Cinecon Legacy Award presented by Judd Apatow and Howie Mandel.

The Egyptian Theatre, 6712 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood; Thu., Aug. 31, 5 p.m. (through Mon., Sept. 4); $40-$50. (323) 461-2020, cinecon.org. —Siran Babayan

MUSIC

Bell Boy

You might have seen the YouTube video in which renowned violinist Joshua Bell busks in a Washington, D.C., metro station for about 45 minutes, unrecognized by all but one of the 1,000-plus commuters who hurry past him. Unlike some classical musicians, the Indiana native and New York resident doesn’t take himself too seriously; he has played himself in a sad video of a cat battling osteoporosis. The 2015 film Magic Mike XXL is a sequel to the original story of male strippers, this time blending dance with a buddy road film as the title character comes out of retirement and rounds up a crew for a final performance.

The Regent, 448 S. Main St, downtown; Mon., Aug. 28, 8 p.m. (doors 7 p.m.); $25. (323) 284-5727, spacelandpresents.com. —David Cotner

THE JAPAN FOUNDATION PRESENTS

DANCE DANCE L’ASIA

Step in Cultural Diversity Through Dance

Ray Basa (Philippine)

Culture Shock L.A. (Korea)

Hilty & Bosch (Japan)

Good Time (Thai)

WizStars (Japan)

MC: LEO (US/Japan)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 2017

DOOR OPEN 3:30 PM SHOW 4 PM

FREE ADMISSION (SAVE YOUR SEAT NOW AT www.JFLALC.ORG)

MI CONCERT HALL AT MUSICIANS INSTITUTE (1655 N. MCCADDEN PL., HOLLYWOOD CA 90028)
CATCH 22

The biologist who discovered L.A.’s most famous mountain lion, P-22, wants to help Angelenos embrace the city’s wild side

BY LIZ OHANESIAN

In February 2012, Miguel Ordeñana got a surprise, something he would later describe as being “like seeing Bigfoot or Chupacabra for the first time.” The L.A.-based biologist was working on the Griffith Park Connectivity Study. It was a project with very little funding, and Ordeñana was putting in weekend hours on the project because the goal was important. They’d set out to determine how connected the massive park is to the rest of the city. Could wildlife get in and out of it? Ordeñana, whose specialties include camera traps and studying carnivores, noticed something on his computer. They had already seen animals such as deer and coyote enter and exit the park, but this creature, spotted near the Ford Amphitheatre and the 101 freeway, was different. Ordeñana had just spotted the mountain lion who would come to be known as P-22. A mountain lion in Griffith Park was not normal. There were no nearby populations, so getting there likely would have required travel through residential areas and crossing freeways that are often a death trap for these animals. Ordeñana’s first pet, a cat, was killed by a coyote. “I love coyotes and I was really angry at coyotes for doing that. I was a kid,” he says.

But young Ordeñana came to terms with the brutality of the food chain. Now, he talks about proactive ways that people can protect their pets, by bringing them inside at night and for feedings, by encouraging neighbors to do the same and by shooing away the animals when they get too close to your home. “They’ve been here since the ice age. They’re extremely adaptable. They’re not going anywhere,” he says. “By removing them, you’re inviting a new pack that could potentially be more habituated into that same area.”

The juxtaposition of urban and wild landscapes in Los Angeles has left some animals in precarious positions. For mountain lions, freeways running through the hills have essentially left populations stranded, resulting in inbreeding and turf fights to the death. “Males are naturally solitary and territorial, kind of keep their distance from other males,” Ordeñana says of the animals. “But [seeing] them actively going after each other and then killing their own mates, or potential mates, and then their own offspring—that’s not normal and that’s happening here in L.A., and that’s going to lead to their local extinction if that gets worse.”

One idea for helping the mountain lions is to build a bridge allowing them to cross the 101 in Agoura Hills. It could actually help a lot of animals, Ordeñana says, even birds.

There are actions that Angelenos can take to help protect local wildlife. There are also steps to help scientists like Ordeñana and others at the Natural History Museum collect data on what exists here. Learning about L.A. nature has its challenges—one of those challenges being inaccessible areas, such as private property—and it takes a community effort to get the research done. But that’s part of what’s exciting about Ordeñana’s work. “It’s more gratifying when I can introduce young kids or even adults to the scientific process or get them excited about the scientific process, and at the same time they’re learning more about wildlife in their backyard,” Ordeñana says. “All that leads to is more people supporting science and people becoming better stewards of their local environment, which will ultimately help all these animals that we all care about.”

FOR ORDEÑANA, THE FAMED MOUNTAIN LION IS A WAY OF INTRODUCING ANGELENOS TO THE WILDLIFE IN OUR MIDST.

Valley, to document the animals that live there. He made a squirrel survey to figure out which species live where. More recently, he has begun local research on bats, which have been found in backyards in unexpected spots in Los Angeles.

Ordeñana grew up in the shadow of Griffith Park. His interest in animals developed earlier and was furthered by trips to the zoo and the Natural History Museum. Despite his interests, even he was surprised by his career turn.

For the past few years, he’s been encouraging locals to become more active in studying the natural world that surrounds them. He has ventured into understudied parts of the city, such as South L.A. and neighborhoods in the San Fernando County, 900 W. Exposition Blvd., Exposition Park | Now on view nhm.org/site/explore-exhibits/special-exhibits/p-22

Ordeñana figured he might have to go to Africa or a national park for work. Yet he’s found quite a bit in the town where he was raised. But city critters don’t get the same kind of attention as those in the wild, and learning about them is necessary for humans to learn how to live with them.

Ordeñana remembers seeing raccoons, opossums and coyotes visiting the yard of a neighbor who left cat food outside. It wasn’t all magical on the edge of nature, though. Ordeñana’s first pet, a cat, was killed by a coyote. “I love coyotes and I was really angry at coyotes for doing that. I was a kid,” he says.

His fascination not only gave him a love of wildlife and learning more about wildlife, but it’s also to make sure that kids like myself, that grew up in the city, especially minorities, don’t fall through the cracks. I felt like that almost happened to me because of a lack of environmental education, a lack of role models out there, that look like me that were scientists.”

Ordeñana was putting in weekend hours on the project because the goal was important. They’d set out to determine how connected the massive park is to the rest of the city. Could wildlife get in and out of it? Ordeñana, whose specialties include camera traps and studying carnivores, noticed something on his computer. They had already seen animals such as deer and coyote enter and exit the park, but this creature, spotted near the Ford Amphitheatre and the 101 freeway, was different. Ordeñana had just spotted the mountain lion who would come to be known as P-22. A mountain lion in Griffith Park was not normal. There were no nearby populations, so getting there likely would have required travel through residential areas and crossing freeways that are often a death trap for these animals. Ordeñana’s first pet, a cat, was killed by a coyote. “I love coyotes and I was really angry at coyotes for doing that. I was a kid,” he says.

But young Ordeñana came to terms with the brutality of the food chain. Now, he talks about pro-active ways that people can protect their pets, by bringing them inside at night and for feedings, by encouraging neighbors to do the same and by shooing away the animals when they get too close to your home. “They’ve been here since the ice age. They’re extremely adaptable. They’re not going anywhere,” he says. “By removing them, you’re inviting a new pack that could potentially be more habituated into that same area.”

The juxtaposition of urban and wild landscapes in Los Angeles has left some animals in precarious positions. For mountain lions, freeways running through the hills have essentially left populations stranded, resulting in inbreeding and turf fights to the death. “Males are naturally solitary and territorial, kind of keep their distance from other males,” Ordeñana says of the animals. “But [seeing] them actively going after each other and then killing their own mates, or potential mates, and then their own offspring—that’s not normal and that’s happening here in L.A., and that’s going to lead to their local extinction if that gets worse.”

One idea for helping the mountain lions is to build a bridge allowing them to cross the 101 in Agoura Hills. It could actually help a lot of animals, Ordeñana says, even birds.

There are actions that Angelenos can take to help protect local wildlife. There are also steps to help scientists like Ordeñana and others at the Natural History Museum collect data on what exists here. Learning about L.A. nature has its challenges—one of those challenges being inaccessible areas, such as private property—and it takes a community effort to get the research done. But that’s part of what’s exciting about Ordeñana’s work. “It’s more gratifying when I can introduce young kids or even adults to the scientific process or get them excited about the scientific process, and at the same time they’re learning more about wildlife in their backyard,” Ordeñana says. “All that leads to is more people supporting science and people becoming better stewards of their local environment, which will ultimately help all these animals that we all care about.”

For Ordeñana, the famed mountain lion is a way of introducing Angelenos to the wildlife in our midst.

For the past few years, he’s been encouraging locals to become more active in studying the natural world that surrounds them. He has ventured into understudied parts of the city, such as South L.A. and neighborhoods in the San Fernando Valley, to document the animals that live there. He made a squirrel survey to figure out which species live where. More recently, he has begun local research on bats, which have been found in backyards in unexpected spots in Los Angeles.

Ordeñana grew up in the shadow of Griffith Park. His interest in animals developed earlier and was furthered by trips to the zoo and the Natural History Museum. Despite his interests, even he was surprised by his career turn.
Investigational medications compared with placebo (sugar pills) with outpatient counseling available in research treatment study for:

COCAINE

COCaine users

Compensation may be provided for time and travel.

For more information, please call: 323-938-8184
Matrix Institute on Addictions, Los Angeles

Research Investigators: Dan George, MPH, MBA, Jeremy Martinez, M.D. & Tasnim Shamji, M.D.
This research project is sponsored by the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Want to reduce or stop meth?

Know someone who does?

UCLA is seeking males and females, 18-65, for a study evaluating two medications for methamphetamine addiction.

Possible risks and benefits will be discussed before agreeing to participate. All calls and visits are confidential and private.

Research visit will be conducted at UCLA Family Health Center in Santa Monica.

Eligible participants will:
- have clinic visits twice a week
- receive 12 weeks of medication
- be compensated for study activities

Contact us for more information at:
310-319-5002
ctrsm@mednet.ucla.edu

5 Minutes to Downtown & L.A. Convention Center!

5 Blocks to L.A. Memorial Coliseum
NEW 46” Flat Screen TV’s
Visit Our Website for Specials

4120 SO WESTERN AVE

www.snootyfoxmotorinn.com
HISTORY IN THE MAKING

There is no overstating how terrific Hamilton is

BY DEBORAH KLUGMAN

When Hamilton was performed for the Obamas in 2016, Michelle Obama is said to have called it “the best piece of art in any form that I have ever seen in my life.” Did she overstate things? Now that I’ve seen the show (for the first time), I don’t think she did.

Much of what there is to say about Lin-Manuel Miranda’s Tony- and Pulitzer-winning stage musical (he wrote music, book and lyrics) has already been said. Based on the 2004 biography by Ron Chernow, Miranda uses the contemporary idiom of rap to relay the remarkable story of one of the pivotal figures in U.S. history, Alexander Hamilton. The play is performed by (mostly) actors of color, in a hip-hop style that probably would have been anathema to the play’s subjects, perhaps even if they’d lived today. Despite the ostensible gap between the prevailing culture of that time and our own, and the piece’s often frenetic musical language, the essence of Hamilton’s story — a struggling, poverty-stricken immigrant who rose nearly to the top, then lost it all — is beautifully and brilliantly rendered.

Unlike his sometime friend, rival and ultimate nemesis Aaron Burr, who was from a wealthy, prominent family in New Jersey, Hamilton was born poor and out of wedlock in the West Indies. As a youth, he was so promising that local merchants banded together to pay for his education at what is now Columbia University in New York. The ambitious Hamilton became a favorite of George Washington, the colonies’ universally respected leader (generating lots of jealousy in political circles).

It was Hamilton, a Federalist, who insisted on — and prevailed in — establishing the U.S. banking system, without which the nation probably would not have survived. The bank’s establishment facilitated great wealth for many savvy and unprincipled investors, but Hamilton, a man of integrity despite his ambition, never exploited his position for personal gain.

While these particulars bring context and enrichment to the story, it’s possible to know nothing of them yet love the show (which embraces elements of rock music and even show tunes as well as the prevailing hip-hop). Multiple elements of this touring production — directed by Thomas Kail, who directed the Broadway production also — deserve praise: the unfailingly rich vocals, the spot-on musical arrangements (Miranda and Alex Lacamoire), the dynamite dancing (choreography by Andy Blankenbuehler), the copacetic lighting (Howell Binkley) — and of course the performances.

This is very much an ensemble work, with the contributions of the supporting cast as finely crafted as those of the more prominent players. If there is a standout, it is Joshua Henry as Burr, who starts as a pal of Hamilton’s, then gradually comes to be eaten away by envy and resentment. The most memorable song for me was “The Room Where It Happens,” about a deal done behind closed doors, with Burr on the outside wanting in. (You couldn’t help relating it to how things operate today.)

As Hamilton, Michael Luwoye serves as a moving anchor for the story, exuding the aura of a complex, dedicated man whose carnal error tragically upends his life. And Isaiah Johnson casts his own light as Washington, a father figure for many, including Hamilton, and a moral bellwether for the nation; his “One Last Time” is a musical highlight.

While Act 1 is impressive in its pace and scope — here’s where we meet all the characters, and the groundwork is laid for the revolution to come — Act 2 packs the emotional punch, as the focus narrows on Hamilton and his family, and their poignant fate.

Sitting in the theater on opening night at this particular show, with several thousand fellow citizens and a few colleagues and friends, it was hard not to ruminate on our future as a nation after the violence in Charlottesville, Virginia, and the terrible, shocking statements of Donald Trump. The company was comforting and the art was dazzling, a buffer and an abeyance for the difficult way ahead.
BACK AGAIN

Terminator 2: Judgment Day returns, retrofitted for new cinema tech — and new nuclear threat

BY BILGE EBIRI

S

ay what you will about James Cameron, but the man commits. Stories of the director’s perfectionism, his control-freak mania and his sheer drive are legion, but I’m talking about something more fundamental to the work itself. Whereas most action filmmakers are content to let emotion and morality take a back seat to the more immediate, commercial elements of their movies, Cameron refuses to relent and instead created the Big Idea as a background. The love story in Titanic isn’t just an excuse to stage an extravagant disaster flick; it becomes the picture’s raison d’être (and, not coincidentally, a key factor in its success). The environmental and anticolonialist overtones of Avatar aren’t there merely to provide some character shading; they practically take over. And now, back in theaters and converted to 3-D, is Cameron’s classic sequel Terminator 2: Judgment Day — not a movie about robots and humans fighting to prevent a nuclear apocalypse but rather a movie obsessed with nuclear apocalypse.

Maybe that wasn’t so clear in 1991, when it originally came out. The Iron Curtain had recently fallen, effectively ending the Cold War and seemingly lifting the nuclear threat. I remember Sarah Connor’s occasional ruminations on the fate of the human race eliciting chuckles in my theater at the time. But today, T2’s overwhelming despair is impossible to ignore. This is one of the most upsetting blockbusters ever.

In 1984, Cameron’s Terminator played a key role in turning Arnold Schwarzenegger into a massive, global star, and it was a nasty, brutish little beast of a movie — an R-rated horror flick posing as a sci-fi thriller. But it worked (and became a hit) because, according to Cameron, it was a “ratings blockbuster” — a big, expensive Hollywood product lacking the allegedly more authentic and sleazy edge of the original.

Watching T2 today, you can see why it resonated 25 years ago. Yes, there’s the expertise of Cameron’s filmmaking, making visceral in this new 4K restoration (which doesn’t gain noticeable extra pop from the 3-D; seeing it on a big screen is draw enough). But the movie’s true power stems from his ability to tap into fears not just of mechanization and dehumanization (notions that Arnold embodies in his very persona) but also of human obsession and transformation. When we meet Sarah here, she’s far from the first film’s soft-feathered club girl, having made herself into a lean, mean survivalist with a cold, raspy voice. The amount of time T2 devotes to Sarah, John and the T-800’s attempts to track down Miles Dyson (Joe Morton) and stop him from creating the microchip that will power the machines that will take over the Earth is telling. So is the question of whether Sarah is justified in wanting to kill Dyson, who has no idea what the future holds for his inventions.

Cameron has always been fully conversant in the tough-guy vernacular of guns, bluster and manly-man mythology. T2’s vision of Arnold walking naked into a biker bar, beating the crap out of everybody and stealing a guy’s leather jacket, boots and motorcycle — all while “Bad to the Bone” plays on the radio — is an engorged wet dream of macho fetish objects. But there’s a hyper-sensitive sincerity to the director, too, a soft side that can turn the images and sounds accompanying her into a pitch-black highway. The music broods with menace. Sarah may speak of hope — as did our leaders at the time — but it’s clear the monsters are still out there.

TERMINATOR 2: JUDGMENT DAY  | Directed by James Cameron  | Written by Cameron and William Wisher Jr.  | Paramount Pictures  | Citywide

T2 IS ONE OF THE MOST UPSETTING BLOCKBUSTERS EVER.

features a reassuring glimpse of his robot-brain readout informing him that he has inflicted “0.0 human casualties” after mowing down a small army of cop cars. All the mayhem, none of the guilt.) The bad guy this time wouldn’t be the beefy Austrian but the slender, sleeker T-1000 (Robert Patrick), an even more advanced robot. T2, while critically acclaimed and immensely successful, was thus seen by some as a kind of impostor cousin to the first film. Its critics grudgingly admired the bravaug hunge of its action and its revolutionary special effects. (This was one of the first uses of computer-generated “morphing” technology, which allowed faces and objects to seamlessly, dreamily transform into other faces and objects.) But to many, the movie was too slick, too eager to please — a big, expensive Hollywood product lacking the allegedly more authentic and sleazy edge of the original.

In 1991, you watched T2 and saw characters triumph over runaway technology and all-powerful computers, but you also experienced a movie that by its very existence demonstrated just how powerful computers were becoming. By the end, Sarah Connor says she’s optimistic, but most of all, that earnestness is visible in the specter of nuclear annihilation that haunts T2. It’s there in the opening images of a crowded contemporary L.A. freeway turned into a futuristic wasteland of broken skulls and twisted metal. It’s there in Sarah’s nightmare vision of watching a children’s playground (and herself) reduced to ash, wind and fire. It’s there in the very presence of both Terminators, and also in the film’s revelatory special effects.

In 1991, you watched T2 and saw characters triumph over runaway technology and all-powerful computers, but you also experienced a movie that by its very existence demonstrated just how powerful computers were becoming. By the end, Sarah Connor says she’s optimistic, but most of all, that earnestness is visible in the specter of nuclear annihilation that haunts T2. It’s there in the opening images of a crowded contemporary L.A. freeway turned into a futuristic wasteland of broken skulls and twisted metal. It’s there in Sarah’s nightmare vision of watching a children’s playground (and herself) reduced to ash, wind and fire. It’s there in the very presence of both Terminators, and also in the film’s revelatory special effects.

In Terminator 2: Judgment Day, Arnold Schwarzenegger, right, returns as a robot sent to protect Sarah Connor and her teenage son (Edward Furlong, left).

T2 IS ONE OF THE MOST UPSETTING BLOCKBUSTERS EVER.

in Chicago and lived to see the blues rumble around the world.

What’s not mentioned is the documentary’s origins in Rosenbaum’s debut feature, The Perfect Age of Rock ‘n’ Roll (2009), when Sumlin, Perkins and Smith were brought together for a fictional blues supergroup that clicked so well that they regrouped in real life. (Sidemen is stitched together from interviews with the musicians on a subsequent tour.) Rosenbaum plays down each man’s long solo career in favor of their formative years as supporting players to blues founding fathers, but his affectionate portrait has the urgency of a fan who realizes that the indomitable spirit of American roots music resides in mortal musicians. —Serena Donadoni

DOCUMENTARY SIDEMEN PUTS 3 BLUES MUSICIANS IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Sidemen: Long Road to Glory hits the familiar notes of Standing in the Shadows of Motown and 20 Feet From Stardom, documentaries focused on unappreciated musicians (like session players and background singers) who’ve made important contributions to pop history. In this reverent documentary, Hubert Sumlin (guitar player for Howlin’ Wolf), “Pinetop” Perkins and Willie “Big Eyes” Smith (pianist and drummer with Muddy Waters), esteemed by other musicians but overlooked by most listeners (save blues scholars and diligent readers of liner notes), receive some long-overdue recognition.

Director Scott Rosenbaum top-loads his first documentary with adoring testimonials from white blues musicians; coupled with Marc Maron’s emphatic narration, Sidemen seems at first like a didactic cultural corrective. It’s only when Rosenbaum digs into the trio’s life stories that their historic impact becomes clear: They grew up with the rural music of sharecroppers in Mississippi and Arkansas, helped electrify the sound
BEACH RATS

A BOY’S DOUBLE LIFE THREATENS TO BLOW UP IN BEACH RATS

BY APRIL WOLFE

In Eliza Hittman’s debut feature, It Felt Like Love, a young girl tests the waters of adult sexuality, offering her body up to the statuesque brothers who live in her Eastern Seaboard beach town. She tries her hardest to mimic the women in pornos, the ones all the boys want, but ends up cold, alone and even more confused than she was before. Now, in Hittman’s follow-up, Beach Rats, the director turns her camera on these bros, peeling away layers of ingrained teen gender roles through the story of Frankie (Harris Dickinson), a sexually questioning guy who adopts the hyper-masculine attributes of his friends in order to assimilate. Hittman’s depictions of sexuality, emotional crisis and parent-teen relationships are rendered here without sentimentality — and with the burning urgency of a stick of dynamite with a lit fuse.

In the outer stretches of Brooklyn, where city streets meet the sea, 19-year-old Frankie sits hunched over in the dark in his parents’ basement, cruising for older men on the internet. The brim of his hat barely lets us see his eyes. He’s not furiously masturbating or drooling over the hot bods on this site; he’s hiding. When one man asks him to meet in person, he responds, “I don’t do that sort of thing.” Eventually, gentle persuasion works on Frankie, and he meets the man in a dense gathering of trees near the beach. He touches and is touched, but his is a cautious ecstasy.

Hittman never lets her protagonist get too comfortable. His need to fit in with his wife-beater-wearing hetero buds is all surface, and it glares like light reflecting off water. At times, it’s difficult to tell apart the four friends — Frankie, Jesse (Anton Selyaninov), Nick (Frank Hakaj), Alexei (David Ivanov) — not just because of their similar looks but also because of their movements. In one scene, the four stand in line at a Coney Island ride and surreptitiously pickpocket a guy’s wallet. Their hands and bodies and minds are in sync, like the gears of a machine.

Frankie continues living his double life, finding small moments of joy and vulnerability with the few men he meets from the dating site. In these scenes, Frankie is no less in rhythm with his male partners than he is with his friends, but that rhythm becomes fluid, the pace relaxed. In contrast to the scenes on the boardwalk — the disorienting house-of-mirrors chaos, the boxing machines, the boy smashing a hammer down with all his might to win a prize for the girl — Frankie’s moments of ease are more heartbreaking to witness because they are so fleeting.

There have been other stories about the emotional toll of being closeted, but Frankie is so afraid of his feelings that he’s barely aware the closet exists. He’s inarticulate and isolated. Yes, the outside world has waved its pride flag — he’s about a 20-minute drive from some of the proudest, outest queers in the country — but in his borough, that side of Brooklyn may as well be in the North Pole.

Where Frankie lives, fireworks explode to oohs and aahs of tourists every night. He can hear the pops and bangs in the distance from his basement as he trolls for dates online, a tourist of sorts himself. To Frankie, the fireworks are unromantic, almost a nuisance, but this is the attitude of a boy who is himself under pressure. All he wants is not to explode. Hittman’s imagery of the fireworks in the sky may echo that of Brokeback Mountain, but she transforms them from something hopeful to an omen, and she suggests no easy ending.

BEACH RATS | Directed and written by Eliza Hittman | Neon | ArcLight Hollywood

---

OPENING THIS WEEK

BUSHWICK | I don’t know what’s more preposterous about Bushwick: that Texas would drop a bunch of mercenaries into the Brooklyn neighborhood and incite a hellish, bloody invasion, or that perky blonde Brittany Snow would be someone who knows the neighborhood like the back of her about-to-be-very-damaged hand. Snow plays a gal who has come back to her old hood to show off her new boyfriend. Unfortunately, she arrives just as Texas and other Southern states decide to form their own sovereign nation and launch a siege of Brooklyn. She then must spend most of the movie trying to save herself and her loved ones. Luckily, she’s assisted by Dave Bautista’s tortured, former Marine medic, who knows how to whip ass and how to keep limbs from bleeding all over the place. Bushwick really wants to be the Birdman (or Invisible, if you prefer) of nihilistic action thrillers. It’s a series of hysterical, obviously spliced long takes, which directors Jonathan Milott and Cary Murnion have attempted to assemble into a stream of batshit-crazy set pieces. They constantly drag the audience forward along with Snow’s and Bautista’s characters, as men, women and dogs fall around them. Unfortunately, as much as you might want to be impressed by its gritty, kamikaze visual ingenuity, Bushwick is a hollow, ultimately unsatisfying exercise in organized chaos. Its most effective trick turns out to be the haunted, understated performance of executive producer Bautista, yet another former WWE superstar who can rivet the hell out of you in a movie. (Craig D. Lindsey)

GHOST HOUSE | Horror films aren’t famous for exercising much subtlety or tact, and Rich Ragsdale’s Ghost House is no exception. The movie follows Julie (Scout Taylor-Compton) and Jim (James Landry Hébert) as they vacation in Thailand. They’re young and in love, but their romantic getaway loses some of its luster when the spirit of a vengeful woman begins to torment Julie after she is tricked into stealing one of the ghost’s possessions. Ghost House belongs to the long tradition of movies about white people carelessly blundering into other cultures and wreaking havoc in their wake. That might have worked if Ragsdale had been interested in critiquing such destructive privilege, but it’s beyond this film’s scope. Instead, it doubles down on its cluelessness with the inclusion of Gogo (Michael S. New), a Thai tour director who puts his life and livelihood on the line to help the couple. (Hope he gets a good tip.) Gogo is nowhere close to a fleshed-out human being — he exists solely to help his wooden benefactors when they get in a rut. But beyond the film’s ethnic stereotypes and flat characters, it needs to be scary, and it fails on that front as well. The movie’s joists are cobbled together from other (better) horror films and exclusively of the jump variety. If Ghost House succeeds at anything, it’s in the film’s low-key portrait of Thailand. The country has been immortalized in cinema as a playground for morally depraved Westerners (see Only Good Girls). The plot takes guts to make Bangkok look this boring. (Bryan Marks)

THE ONLY LIVING BOY IN NEW YORK

There is a better, more touching movie hidden somewhere inside The Only Living Boy in New York, and you can often see it creeping in around the edges. It’s not to be found in the somewhat empty coming-of-age narrative at the film’s center, which follows Thomas (Callum Turner), a precocious, snarky and (of course) melanchooly recent college grad having trouble deciding what to do with his life. The offspring of a publishing executive father (Pierce Brosnan) and a neurotic artist mother (Cynthia Nixon), Thomas likes to mope about how New York isn’t New York anymore, how everything today has lost its edge. (He’s fond of saying, “New York’s most vibrant neighborhood right now is Philadelphia.”) At least some of the young man’s bitterness, however, comes from the fact that he’s been rebuked by his beautiful best friend, Mimi (Kiersey Clemons), with whom he once had a late-night hookup. Mimi can see through his emptiness. Can the film, though? Thomas is, in a word, insufferable, and as long as the movie keeps him at its center, you may find yourself struggling to care about anything he does. Some help, however, is on the way. Moving into his new apartment, Thomas meets mysteriously chatty, hard-drinking neighbor W.F. (Jeff Bridges), who begins schooling him in the ways of life and love. Their relationship is intriguing — Bridges does a lot of a heavy lifting here. Thomas’ attitudes and postures do get interrogated and undercut. But the filmmakers still clearly expect us to like this kid, and it’s hard to feel anything for a character who remains largely a cipher. (Bigez Ebn"

Revisit Works of Buster Keaton and John Huston

Saturday, Aug. 26

Discovering Buster Keaton is like finding gold in your backyard. As a comedian, he can do funny with the best of them, but as a filmmaker keenly aware of the ways in which cinema works on our minds and emotions, he may have surpassed his contemporaries. Actor-cartoonist-magician-comedian Paul Dooley knew Keaton personally and professionally, which makes his appearance at the Spielberg so special. Three of Keaton’s best shorts screen on 16mm: One Week, The Goald and The Playhouse. Cliff Retallick will provide live musical accompaniment. Dooley will introduce the program and reminisce about his relationship with the Great Stone Face. Spielberg’s Place at the Egyptian, 6712 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Sat., Aug. 29, 7:30 p.m.; $12. (323) 466-3456, americancinematheque.com.

Sunday, Aug. 27

UCLA concludes its John Huston retrospective with the director’s last two films. Fritz’s Honor, an intricately plotted, pitch-dark comedy about mob assassins (Jack Nicholson and Kathleen Turner) who fall in love and marry, features a showstopping role for Huston’s daughter, Angelica. Huston directed The Dead, adapted from James Joyce’s short story, from a wheelchair as he was dying of cancer. It’s a deeply moving swan song, UCLA’s Billy Wilder Theater, 10899 Wiltshire Blvd., Westwood; Sun., Aug. 27, 7 p.m.; $10. (310) 206-8013, cinema.ucla.edu.

Tuesday, Aug. 29

The Hammer hosts a special screening of Dee Rees’ Pariah, the 2011 Sundance winner about a Brooklyn teen’s painful journey for sexual fulfillment. Shot in bold, saturated colors, the film is an impressionistic, emotionally authentic depiction of growing up black, gay and female. A discussion with writers Tisa Bryant and Ernest Hardy (both teachers at Cal Arts) follows the screening. UCLA’s Billy Wilder Theater, 10899 Wiltshire Blvd., Westwood; Tue., Aug. 29, 7:30 p.m.; $10. (310) 206-8013, hammer.ucla.edu.

Thursday, Aug. 31

A few weeks ago, Wonder Woman surpassed Alvin and the Chipmunks: The squeakquel to become the highest-grossing film directed by a woman. (Clearly, the rodents with feathered helmets — the works) astride a Harley. The movie is … less. Wonder Woman: See Thursday. used throughout the film), who suppos- edly mate for life and die from heartbreak — so what went wrong? Caro captures the exciting first moments of flirtation and early relationship bliss with music video-like montages, both sweet and comy, but the story within the flashback becomes more nonsensical and tiresome as the movie goes on. Present-day Martina and Lucio hold a bit more steam, but the film fails to sustain the exhilaration of its initial buildup. (Kristen Yoosook Kim)

UNLEASHED A fantasy about seducing your pets seems like it should be pretty transgressive, a cinematic middle finger to straight-laced, cis-specialist notions about sexual desire. In practice, though, director Finn Taylor’s Unleashed is an ineffective Hallmark card of an indie comedy, as indifferently intended by the sender as it is regarded by the recipient. Which is true? Is our culture so evolved and progressive that we can accept a workplace conversation in which one woman bemoans her inability to bone her dog? Or can basically any sexual taboo be normalized by broad jokes, sugar-coating montages and two instigators of the slightest-ever-s branded cover of Hot Chocolate’s “You Sexy Thing”? The charming, hilarious Kate Micucci is Emma, a software engineer with low self-confidence and a broken heart. A work friend worries about her based on a past alignment that will cause disruptive changes in her life; that night, some artful illustrations in the sky transform her pets from animals into humans, and they run away. Emma’s golden retriever, Sam, is played by Steve Howey as clumsy, sweet and butt-scratchy. Justin Chatwin is Diego, her cat, who’s precise, socially aloof and prone to retching. For reasons that aren’t 100 percent clear, they compete to romance Emma while learning to live as humans. This is really most of the film — a lot of climbing on furniture, humping strangers on dance floors and licking food from plates in fancy restaurants. Sean Astin plays Carl, one of those tiny-house-dwelling oddballs, who pines for Emma and therefore represents society’s intra-species sexual bias, but unfortunately, this is not the film that will tear down that wall. (Chris Packham)

ON MY WAY OUT: THE SECRET LIFE OF NANI AND POPI
Daily at 12:00 pm ❖ Aug. 25-31, 2017
Laemmle’s Town Center 5
17200 Ventura Blvd. ❖ Encino, CA 91316
310-478-3836 ❖ laemmle.com

I AM LITTLE RED
Daily at 1:10 pm ❖ Aug. 25-31, 2017
Laemmle’s Town Center 5
17200 Ventura Blvd. ❖ Encino, CA 91316
310-478-3836 ❖ laemmle.com

RANCHER, FARMER, FISHERMAN
Aug. 25-31, 2017 ❖ Daily at 2:30, 5:00, 7:30 & 10:00
Monica Film Center
1332 2nd St ❖ Santa Monica, CA 90405
310-478-3836 ❖ laemmle.com

15: A QUINCEANERA STORY
Daily at 1:00 pm ❖ Aug. 25-31, 2017
Laemmle’s Playhouse 7
673 East Colorado Blvd. ❖ Pasadena, CA 91101
310-478-3836 ❖ laemmle.com

Hollywood & Vicinity

ARENA CINELOUNGE SUNDAY 6646 Sunset Boulevard (323) 934-2244
Call theater for schedule. Fri., Sat., 12:30, 5:30, 8:30 p.m.; Sun., Sat., 12:30, 5:30, 8:30 p.m.

ARENA CINELOUNGE SATURDAY 6646 Sunset Boulevard (323) 934-2244
Call theater for schedule. Fri., Sat., 12:30, 5:30, 8:30 p.m.; Sun., Sat., 12:30, 5:30, 8:30 p.m.

ARCLIGHT HOLLYWOOD Sunset Blvd. at Vine (323) 464-4226
Close Encounters of the Third Kind 40th Anniversary Weekend
Beach Bums Fri., Sun., 11 a.m., 2 p.m., 5 p.m., 8 p.m.

AT THE MOVIES BY STEVE VAN ZANDT'S... (Steven Van Zandt notes in the film that he should only direct films he what to do behind a camera. Revelator shows that he should only direct films he isn’t also written. (Craig D. Lindsay)

RUMBLE: THE INDIANS WHO ROCKED THE WORLD While overstuffed and scat- terish, this episodic documentary makes a vital argument: That American popular music, especially the blues and rock & roll, owe much more to Native Americans than has been commonly credited. The title comes from Link Wray’s solo pow- power chord masterpiece, “Rumble,” the 1958 instrumental that is the headwaters of all rock/punk/metal guitar bad assery.

A fantasy about seducing your pets seems like it should be pretty transgressive, a cinematic middle finger to straight-laced, cis-specialist notions about sexual desire.

In practice, though, director Finn Taylor’s Unleashed is an ineffective Hallmark card of an indie comedy, as indifferently intended by the sender as it is regarded by the recipient. Which is true? Is our culture so evolved and progressive that we can accept a workplace conversation in which one woman bemoans her inability to bone her dog? Or can basically any sexual taboo be normalized by broad jokes, sugar-coating montages and two instigators of the slightest-ever-s branded cover of Hot Chocolate’s “You Sexy Thing”? The charming, hilarious Kate Micucci is Emma, a software engineer with low self-confidence and a broken heart. A work friend worries about her based on a past alignment that will cause disruptive changes in her life; that night, some artful illustrations in the sky transform her pets from animals into humans, and they run away. Emma’s golden retriever, Sam, is played by Steve Howey as clumsy, sweet and butt-scratchy. Justin Chatwin is Diego, her cat, who’s precise, socially aloof and prone to retching. For reasons that aren’t 100 percent clear, they compete to romance Emma while learning to live as humans. This is really most of the film — a lot of climbing on furniture, humping strangers on dance floors and licking food from plates in fancy restaurants.

Sean Astin plays Carl, one of those tiny-house-dwelling oddballs, who pines for Emma and therefore represents society’s intra-species sexual bias, but unfortunately, this is not the film that will tear down that wall. (Chris Packham)
AMC LOEWS CINEPLEX BROADWAY
1441 Third Street Promenade (800) 326-3264 706
Call theater for schedule.

NEW MALIBU THEATER
3822 Cross Creek Road (310) 456-6990
Call theater for schedule.

South Bay
AMC DEL AMO 18 3525 Carson St., Suite 73 (310) 289-4262
Close Encounters of the Third Kind 40th Anniversary Release Thurs., 7, 10:15 p.m.
Marvel’s Inhumans Thurs., 7:20 p.m.
Castle in the Sky - Studio Ghibli Fest 2017 Sun., 2:55 p.m.; 7 p.m.
All Saints Fri.-Sun., 11 a.m., 145, 4:30, 7:15, 10 p.m.
Terminator 2: Judgment Day in 3D Fri.-Sun., 11 a.m., 1:30, 4:35, 7:30, 10:20, 1:30, 4:35, 7:30, 10:45 p.m.

Cineplex Tropicana
10320 S. Sepulveda Blvd., Whittier (562) 274-2740

AMC GALLERIA AT SOUTH BAY 16
South Bay Galleria, 1815 Hawthorne Blvd., Redondo Beach 777-777-422
Terminator 2: Judgment Day in 3D Fri.-Sun., 1:40, 4:15, 7:15, 10 p.m.

AMC ROLLING HILLS 20
Crenshaw & Pacific Coast Hwy. (310) 289-4262
Marvel’s Inhumans Thurs., 7:20 p.m.

THE NUMBER ON GREAT-GRANDPA’S ARM
Aug. 25-31, 2017  Laemmle’s Playhouse 7
673 East Colorado Blvd.  Pasadena, CA 91101
310-478-3836  laemmle.com

TRAFFIC STOP
Daily at 1:20 pm  Aug. 25-31, 2017
Laemmle’s Playhouse 7
673 East Colorado Blvd.  Pasadena, CA 91101
310-478-3836  laemmle.com

LAEMMLE’S NOHO 7
5240 Lankershim Boulevard (310)478-3836
Castle in the Sky - Studio Ghibli Festival 2017 Mon., Thurs., 7:30 p.m.
CENTURY 8 Victory Blvd. & Coldwater Canyon Ave. (818) 508-6004
08.26.17 Mayweather vs. McGregor Sat., 6 p.m.

AMC LOEWS CINEPLEX UNIVERSAL STUDIOS CINEMA
100 Universal City Dr. (818) 320-5264 707
Marvel’s Inhumans Thurs., 7:35 p.m.
Castle in the Sky - Studio Ghibli Fest 2017 Mon., Thurs., 7:35 p.m.

PACIFIC’S SHERMAN OAKS 5
5240 Lankershim Boulevard (310) 478-3836

THE WRAP
“ESTABLISHES ELIZA HITTMAN AS AN AUTEUR.”

HARRIS DICKINSON IS A REVELATION...
SO BELIEVABLE THAT YOU FORGET YOU’RE WATCHING A PERFORMANCE.”

“HARRIS DICKINSON IS A REVELATION... SO BELIEVABLE THAT YOU FORGET YOU’RE WATCHING A PERFORMANCE.”

“HARRIS DICKINSON IS A REVELATION... SO BELIEVABLE THAT YOU FORGET YOU’RE WATCHING A PERFORMANCE.”

THE NEW YORK TIMES
“A VISUAL, SENSUAL EXPERIENCE.”

“HARRIS DICKINSON IS A REVELATION... SO BELIEVABLE THAT YOU FORGET YOU’RE WATCHING A PERFORMANCE.”
AFTER 11 YEARS, WEEKLY CLUB NIGHT FUNKMOSPHERE IS ENDING — BUT IN OTHER WAYS, SAYS FOUNDER DÂM-FUNK, THIS IS JUST THE BEGINNING

BY JEFF WEISS

Funkmosphere was the Field of Dreams of funk. When Dâm-Funk launched the indelible dance party about 600 weeks ago, the state of the genre was as moribund as Moonlight Graham. The fluorescent chords of boogie and the junkyard-dog talkbox of Roger Troutman, once the bedrock of sweat-dripping bacchanals and L.A. hip-hop, had become afterthoughts. Only a few recognized the sounds for what they were: an irreplaceable component of L.A.’s sonic fabric and arguably the best party music ever conceived.

This Thursday marks the final installment of what will go down as one of the best club nights in civic history — though it will continue to live as a semi-regular party series, starting with an Oct. 20 edition at Union featuring George Clinton and Parliament-Funkadelic.

“It felt like the mission had been accomplished,” says Dâm-Funk, the architect behind the resurgence of the sound that has re-emerged over the last five years in tracks by everyone from Bruno Mars and Kendrick Lamar to Toro y Moi and Tyler, the Creator.

“When we started, funk was snickered at, and now it’s everywhere, from pop radio to clubs in L.A. and around the world. We did it uncut and opened up a lot of doors. Now it’s time to move to special events and go out on top.”

Dâm-Funk built it and they came. Starting in 2006, week after week. First on Monday nights at the Carbon in Culver City, and then, in 2012, on Thursdays at the Virgil. It was probably the most consistent Thursday night offering since Seinfeld was on the air.

As Dâm-Funk’s career ascended, the other residents stepped up and burnedished their reputation as some of the finest selectors in this city or any other, excavating obscure ’70s and ’80s funk rarities, turning up the party and educating at the same time.

Though the night was spawned from Dâm-Funk’s vision, it couldn’t have prospered without his crew — Billy Goods, Randy Watson, Laroj, Matt Respect and Eddy Funkster. Over the last several years, the latter’s Mo Funk imprint also helped push the modern funk sound forward, offering another front in the gradual renaissance.

The weekly couldn’t have begun under more humble origins. Its genesis traced to a chance encounter Dâm-Funk had with Carbon’s booker; Funk was working as an OfficeMax truck driver. When he learned a Monday night slot was available, he furtively snatched the opportunity.

“That first night, there were maybe 14 people. Sometimes there would be as few as three,” Funk says. “Then I looked up months later and it was packed. I want to inspire others who feel like they’re on the fringe of a scene to take whatever it is that they like, put their foot in it and make it their own. Club culture can be whatever you want it to be.”

Few club nights have ever been as diverse and eclectic. The sound might have been centered in funk but the crowds were always diverse and inclusive, spanning all demographics. You could see UCLA kids dancing next to the late and fondly remembered Reggae Pops. Diplo came in one night. So did Faith Evans, wearing a Kiss shirt. Even Casey Affleck and Joaquin Phoenix once pulled up.

“IT NATURALLY FOUND A LANE BECAUSE IT WAS HONEST. HONESTY IS THE KEY,” Dâm-Funk says. “When you’re honest with yourself and doing something that you dig, you’ll attract other people. Just make sure that you’re original.”

An L.A. native, Jeff Weiss is the founder of Passion of the Weiss and POW Recordings, and hosts the monthly POW Radio on Dublab (99.1 FM). Follow him on Twitter @passionweiss.
THE ORIGINAL

MISFITS

ONLY 2017 PERFORMANCE IN THIS WORLD... OR ANY OTHER WORLD!!!

Featuring

Original Singer/Songwriter

GLENN DANZIG

Original Bassist

JERRY ONLY

With DOYLE WOLFGANG VON FRANKENSTEIN on Guitar

PLUS SPECIAL GUESTS

ALKALINE TRIO

DISCHARGE

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30TH

LOS ANGELES, CA @ THE FORUM

TICKETS ON SALE FRIDAY @ 12:30PM
TICKETMASTER.COM
THE BEST NEW MUSIC!

GRIEVES Running Wild
Grieves teamed up with Swedish producer Chords, and the two have produced a modernized sound that is lush and intoxicating.

LIARS TCF
Blurring the lines between electronic and acoustic, between the experimental impulse and the addictive pop sensibility, evidence that Liars’ creative energies remain as healthy as ever.

THE NEXT CHARLOTTESVILLE

The whatever-you-want-to-call-it that happened in Charlottesville, Virginia, which resulted in death and injury, was one thing. The free-speech rally, as it was called, in Boston, that resulted in no deaths and many witty signs was another. So, what happens at the next First Amendment exercise that’s more like Charlottesville? Another installment in the battle between good and bad: two sides, two sides, right?

But actually, there’s a third: the law. When you whack someone with your tiki torch, lit or unlit, it’s assault. Same if you punch the guy holding a flag with a swastika on it. You get arrested, go to court and maybe do time. Or, if you hit someone — for whatever reason, attack, defense — and do it just right, the person dies. It happens more often than you might believe.

By the rule of law, a lot of people at the Charlottesville clash should have been arrested. For whatever reason, the police weren’t doing their job.

The Charlottesville combatants telegraphed what they anticipated, and prepared accordingly. Helmets, pepper spray, shields, things to hit shields with. For some of them at least, contact was what they were coming for. If there’s another one of these get-downs, do you think people will be less likely to mix it up, or more? You already know the answer. We Americans are not known for our restraint, or for coming down off of anything.

Do you think those militia guys with their mismatched, mail-order tactical gear brought their rifles to just show them off? It would be great if that was the case, but what happens when one of them genuinely feels threatened, or that his freedom is being infringed upon, enough to open fire into a crowd?

The AR-15 is one hell of a weapon. It’s a perfectly designed killing machine. The round it fires is backed by a massive charge. It will go into and out of your soft midsection in less than a second and keep on going through a few more of your fellow protesters.

What if law enforcement feels under attack and fires on members of the militia? Remember what Ted Nugent stated in 2013: “I’m part of a very great experiment in self-government where we the people determine our own pursuit of happiness and our own individual freedom and liberty, not to be confused with the Barack Obama gang who believes in we the sheeple and actually is attempting to re-implement the tyranny of King George that we escaped from in 1776. And if you want another Concord Bridge, I got some buddies.

The last time Ted and I spoke, I reminded him that I do my best to quote him accurately. I’m not trying to make the man go get his buddies! This is what Ted said.

David Duke and other comrade Trump supporters might want you to fear America’s Black Lives Matter movement, but I think it’s the White Lives Matter folks you want to be wary of. Several things they consider to be rightfully theirs have been taken from them: their homeland, strewn with the fossil remains of slaughtered Native Americans; their right to celebrate their battle heritage from the big one in 1861.

In Charlottesville, they chanted that they would not be replaced. Who seeks to replace them? Apparently, according to them, people like Jared Kushner. Things could get complicated.

What will be the result of Steve “the Barbarian” Bannon shoving his anal invader into place and plopping his venal plentitude back into the captain’s chair on the battleship Breitbart? Bannon said, “I’ve got my hands back on my weapons,” whatever the fuck that means. What will come from this man, now that he’s unshackled, and free to get America back on track, since he’s concluded that “the Trump presidency that we fought for, and won, is over. We still have a huge movement, and we will make something of this Trump presidency. But that presidency is over. It’ll be something else. And there’ll be all kinds of fights, and there’ll be good days and bad days, but that presidency is over.”

Is the Barbarian saying that he’ll be running the MAGA offensive from Breitbart (which should be pronounced the way Neidermeyer pronounced “pledge pin” as he berates Flounder in Animal House), allowing comrade Teddy Bird more time to try to disable the many square feet of underwear jammed in his asscrack from the unending he-man wedgie he’s getting from the Mueller Justice Overdrive? What will that U.S.A look like by the end of the year? A few Concord Bridges sold to some of his buddies?

There seems to be only one person in the public eye who isn’t taking recent events with the seriousness they deserve. One who doesn’t see it as his job to speak forcefully and decisively, without hesitation or equivocation. Everyone knows who that is.

Sometimes, it’s as if there is no one in charge at all. What if that’s the plan? What if that was Bannon’s intent all along? What if he got into the White House, into Trump’s head, dizzied him up with all kinds of insane bullshit? Trump will never understand but will go along with, and then either quit or get fired, mission accomplished? What if we have to take this satanic hippo seriously for the next few months?
THU. AUGUST 24

DAS BUNKER PRESENTS:
AURELIO VOLTAIRE

FRI. AUGUST 25

BLESS UP LA!

SAT. AUGUST 26

BLACK ASTEROID
AYARCANA
138

OMEN RECORDINGS PRESENTS:
BLACK ASTEROID AYARCANA
138 ANTHONY JIMENEZ, LINDSEY HERBERT

FRI. OCTOBER 20

GEORGE CLINTON & PARLIAMENT FUNKADELIC
WITH SPECIAL GUESTS: BUM-TUNK & FUNKADAM RESIDENTS

COMING SOON:
8/25 FOR THE LADIES
8/26 KAPPA DAY PARTY
8/26 BLACK ASTEROID, AYARCANA, 138
8/27 SKANKSTER SUNDAY!
8/27 LAST NITE
8/29 FIVE BOMBA HOLLAS
8/30 HOT SAUCE, LILA GOLD
9/1 INQUISTION
9/1 DAMAGED SOUNDS PRESENTS
THE AKATSUKI TAKEOVER FEAT. FLIX,
MOTUS, SATSUMA, KOZIK,
PROVOKATIVE, BLOX & SURPRISE GUEST
9/7 JOEYSPAZUM & FRIENDS END OF SUMMER JAM
9/8 LIFE AND DEATH TOUR 2017
9/14 GOTHNEK
9/15 KENNY LARKIN AND JOHN TEJADA
9/16 DRYJACKET, SUNDRESSED
9/17 FUTURE UJIES
9/21 OI-SKALL MATES
9/22 THE NIGHT CAP: A LINGERIE AND
PAJAMA PARTY
9/23 VIERNES VERDE
9/29 EVIL DEAD
9/30 YELLERATED & KILLAHURTZ
PRESENT MAMPI SWIFT B2B
CRISPY CRISSE (LIVE 2 HOUR SET
ON 7 DECKS!) SUPPORT FROM
DJ CONSTRUCT & SEEBASS
10/4 P.O.S. F/W 2017 RAP TOUR
10/5 SOL VIRANI
10/13 LOS CALIGARIS
11/11 DRI, EXCEL, HIRAX, DEATHWISH,
WITHCHAVE, CRYPTIC SLAUGHTER
& KNOW
12/8 BEARGOBS

FRIDAYS

9/24 BASS FOR BREAST: TRAPSTYLE
TAKEOVER
9/25 HIP HOP SHOWCASE
9/26 CLUB 90’S
9/27 WEST COAST AWARDS BALL
9/27 CRANE SERVICE
9/28 EL REENCUENTRO - LATIN MONDAY
9/1 MALIBU DRIVE AND
DETONATOR LIVE
9/1 HIP HOP SHOWCASE
9/6 1960’S PROM NIGHT
9/7 A CHESTER BENNINGTON TRIBUTE
CHARITY SHOW

COMING SOON:
9/8 NOCHE DE VERANO KANDELA 2017
9/8 OHI
9/9 BOOTIE LA
9/9 CULT FRICTION: MERCY MODE
9/9 SEAN HEALY PRESENTS: BOBAFLEX
9/10 THE FLOOR IMPROV NIGHT
9/20 WITCHTRAP
9/23 ¡MAYDAY!
9/25 CITIZENS & SAINTS TOUR! W/SPECIAL GUESTS
9/26 CONCRETE JUNGLE ENT PRESENTS:
LOWERCLASS BRATS
10/4 JOSH KELLER
10/7 SABRAHN
10/14 JULIET WALKER
10/27 AURA NOIR

SATURDAYS

9/26 DAS FINALE
9/27 NIGHT MARKET
9/27 WEST COAST AWARDS BALL
9/27 WILLY WONKA KIKI BALL
9/27 WEST COAST AWARDS BALL
9/27 CRANE SERVICE
9/28 EL REENCUENTRO - LATIN MONDAY
9/1 MALIBU DRIVE AND
DETONATOR LIVE
9/1 HIP HOP SHOWCASE
9/6 1960’S PROM NIGHT
9/7 A CHESTER BENNINGTON TRIBUTE
CHARITY SHOW

COMING SOON:
9/15 KENNY LARKIN AND JOHN TEJADA
9/16 DRYJACKET, SUNDRESSED
9/17 FUTURE UJIES
9/21 OI-SKALL MATES
9/22 THE NIGHT CAP: A LINGERIE AND
PAJAMA PARTY
9/23 VIERNES VERDE
9/29 EVIL DEAD
9/30 YELLERATED & KILLAHURTZ
PRESENT MAMPI SWIFT B2B
CRISPY CRISSE (LIVE 2 HOUR SET
ON 7 DECKS!) SUPPORT FROM
DJ CONSTRUCT & SEEBASS
10/4 P.O.S. F/W 2017 RAP TOUR
10/5 SOL VIRANI
10/13 LOS CALIGARIS
11/11 DRI, EXCEL, HIRAX, DEATHWISH,
WITHCHAVE, CRYPTIC SLAUGHTER
& KNOW
12/8 BEARGOBS

SAT. AUGUST 26

BOOTIE LA: MICHAEL JACKSON

SUN. AUGUST 27

THE WILLY WONKA KIKI BALL

MAKE MUSIC GREAT AGAIN

THU. AUGUST 31

LIVE IN CONCERT
EN YOUNG
RAYVON

SEAN HEALY PRESENTS:
EN YOUNG

SAT. SEPTEMBER 2

SHABBAAAAAA

COMING SOON:
8/24 DASH FOR BREAST: TRAPSTYLE
TAKEOVER
8/25 A.X.E CONCERT SERIES
8/25 HIP HOP SHOWCASE
8/26 CLUB 90’S
8/27 WEST COAST AWARDS BALL
8/27 CRANE SERVICE
8/28 EL REENCUENTRO - LATIN MONDAY
8/1 MALIBU DRIVE AND
DETONATOR LIVE
8/1 HIP HOP SHOWCASE
8/6 1960’S PROM NIGHT
8/7 A CHESTER BENNINGTON TRIBUTE
CHARITY SHOW

9/15 KENNY LARKIN AND JOHN TEJADA
9/16 DRYJACKET, SUNDRESSED
9/17 FUTURE UJIES
9/21 OI-SKALL MATES
9/22 THE NIGHT CAP: A LINGERIE AND
PAJAMA PARTY
9/23 VIERNES VERDE
9/29 EVIL DEAD
9/30 YELLERATED & KILLAHURTZ
PRESENT MAMPI SWIFT B2B
CRISPY CRISSE (LIVE 2 HOUR SET
ON 7 DECKS!) SUPPORT FROM
DJ CONSTRUCT & SEEBASS
10/4 P.O.S. F/W 2017 RAP TOUR
10/5 SOL VIRANI
10/13 LOS CALIGARIS
11/11 DRI, EXCEL, HIRAX, DEATHWISH,
WITHCHAVE, CRYPTIC SLAUGHTER
& KNOW
12/8 BEARGOBS

SAT. SEPTEMBER 2

SHABBAAAAAA

3040 W. SUNSET BLVD, LOS ANGELES, CA 90026 (323) 666-6669 TICKETS & INFO AT CLUBLOGOSGLOBOS.COM /CLUBLOGOSGLOBOS /@CLUBLOGOSGLOBOS @LOSLOGOS
Music Picks

8/25

The Mynabirds
@ THE BOOTLEG
“T’d rather have cuts on my knees than blood in my mouth from biting my tongue and keeping it down,” Laura Burhenn insists amid the colorful glow of flickering, bending guitar patterns on “Shouting at the Dark,” from The Mynabirds’ just-released album, Be Here Now. Decrying Trump’s denigration of women and his plan to ban transgender people in the military, Burhenn explains on the group’s website that the new song is a “rallying cry for resistance ... a call to the most vulnerable people among us to know that they are loved.” But it’s more of a comforting and soaring trip above the clouds than a bitterly angry punk broadside. “Everybody, everybody, stand together/Everybody stand your ground,” she exhorts on the record’s title track, a slowly pulsing groove framed by forceful piano and hints of gospel amid psychedelic echoes. —Falling James

The Dead Daisies
@ EL REY THEATRE
The tale of The Dead Daisies is an interesting one. The fairly unspectacular Australian hard-rock band formed by David Lowy and Jon Stevens in 2012 morphed into a supergroup of sorts after Stevens left the group and all manner of wild and wonderful characters passed through the ranks. The current lineup includes the other Motley Crüe singer, John Corabi; Whitesnake and Dio guitarist Doug Aldrich; Thin Lizzy and Black Star Riders bassist Marco Mendoza; and drummer Brian Tichy, who has played with just about everybody. While the lineup has shifted over the years, the band’s desire to play passionate, ‘70s-influenced rock & roll in a Bad Company/Faces/Foreigner vein has remained consistent. These are solid, working musicians who know how to drive home riffs and lyrics. —Brett Callwood

8/26

It’s Not Dead Festival
@ GLEN HELEN AMPHITHEATER
This one-day festival’s somewhat defensive moniker refers to the old joke “Punk’s not dead; it just smells that way,” as well as endless variations on the slogan. Punk rock has indeed been declared dead numerous times, beginning in 1978 with the breakup of the Sex Pistols, and yet it perseveres as one of music’s most thrilling expressions of rage. As is often the case with this kind of festival, the lineup is an almost random assortment of still-thriving early-era trailblazers (Buzzcocks, Slaughter & the Dogs, GBH, The Adicts) and variously intense second-generation imitators (The Casualties, Rancid, U.S. Bombs, Guttermouth), interspersed with fiery ’80s ska (The Selecter, The Toasters) and latter-day ska-punks (Voodoo Glow Skulls). With the rise of Trump, the savagely chilling “Manzanar” by Cerritos stalwarts Channel 3 sounds just as relevant as ever. —Falling James

Mark de Clive-Lowe
@ GRAND PERFORMANCES AT CALIFORNIA PLAZA
He is a simultaneous master of diverse musical origins, notably his mixture of American jazz, hip-hop and soul with the broken-beat dance grooves of the U.K. Yet the earliest musical determinants of keyboardist and electronic artist Mark de Clive-Lowe came from children’s songs he learned from his Japanese mother. As he traveled as a teen between his native New Zealand and Japan, it was in the Tokyo jazz club scene where he found his musical calling. MdCL has become an ambassador of music around the world, so it’s fitting he now acknowledges his Japanese heritage. He enlists shakuhachi and taiko master Kaoru Watanabe, koto player Yumi Kurosawa and Japanese rapper Shingo2 to transform Japanese folk melodies into MdCL’s signature blend of improvisation and infectious pulse and flow, an ode to his motherland that will be moving, both emotionally and rhythmically. —Gary Fukushima

Marty Friedman
@ WHISKEY A GO GO
In the late 1990s, then-Megadeth guitarist Marty Friedman shredded along on stage to metal classics like “Symphony of Destruction,” but offset he was immersing himself in a growing love for melodic, J-pop music. He left Megadeth in 2000, moved to Japan and found a new career as a Japanese media celebrity while releasing solo albums that melded his metallic guitar histrionics with influences from his new home. Friedman has begun reintroducing himself to American metal audiences, most recently with his just-released solo album, Wall of Sound, which combines guest appearances from members of modern acts such as Deafheaven with instrumental pop balladry and ambitious orchestration — most notably on “Sorrow and Madness,” featuring compelling violin instrumentation from Jinxx of Black Veil Brides. —Jason Roche

Black Asteroid
@ UNION
A Minneapolis native, Bryan Black once worked as a sound designer for Prince at Paisley Park Studios. During the ‘90s, he performed with a series of industrial groups, eventually founding Motor, a post-industrial dance-music act inspired by EBM bands (electronic body music; not to be confused with EDM) such as Front 242 and Nitzer Ebb. Motor, comprised of Black and Parisian musician Mr. No (aka Olivier Grasset), toured with Depeche Mode in 2009. Reinventing himself as Black Asteroid, Black now makes techno that affirms his industrial roots for some of the genre’s most esteemed imprints, including Chris Liebing’s CLR and Speedy J’s Electric Deluxe. Black Asteroid tops the bill with Ayarcano and 138 at a show hosted by recently launched, L.A.-based, industrial-tinged techno label Omen Recordings. —Matt Miner

8/27

No Age
@ THE SMELL
In keeping with their roots, No Age return tonight to their old home base, all-ages downtown club the Smell. The local noise-rock duo’s audience might be a lot bigger these days than it was when they started performing at the Smell more than a decade ago, but refreshingly the ticket price remains $5, the LA CHINATOWN & KCRW 89.9 FM PRESENT

CHINATOWN
Summer NIGHTS

SEPT 2ND | 5PM TO MIDNIGHT

FREE FOR ALL AGES

CENTRAL PLAZA

KCRW Main Stage DJs
ft. DJs Travis Holcombe & Raul Campos

Culinary Attractions
Chef Demonstrations
Secret Wonton Eating Competition
Food Trucks and Pop Ups

Cultural Entertainment
Arts & Craft Workshops
Traditional Chinese Performances
Local Vendors

Central Plaza 943 N. Broadway
Los Angeles 90012

MANDARIN PLAZA

LA Weekly Stage & Beer Garden
Curated Live Bands
Local Craft Beers

The Far Bazaar
Vintage, Mondern & Sustainable Marketplace

Gourmet Concepts
Homeboy Industries - Redemption Ribs
Secret Lasagna

Mandarin Plaza 970 N. Broadway
Los Angeles 90012

WWW.CHINATOWNLA.COM  losangeleschinatown  LAChinatown  #CSN2017
venue’s usual admission charge. No Age haven’t released a new full-length album since 2013’s An Object (Sub Pop), but a 2016 single gives some hints about how drummer-vocalist Dean Allen Spunt and guitarist Randy Randall might be evolving. The B-side, “Serf to Serf,” rumbles with Randall’s powerhouse chords while Spunt’s anthemic vocals recall vintage Radio Birdman. The A-side, “Separation,” is also energetic but infused with a little more arty, Mission of Burma–/Wire–style post-punk formalism.

—Falling James

Wolf Woodcock’s Kinetic: An Audiovisual Experience

@ CIVIC CENTER STUDIO

Los Angeles singer-guitarist Wolf Woodcock has always displayed a fabulous creative originality. Even at age 14, leading his wild Leaking Pigs, Woodcock’s surprisingly elegant idiosyncrasies and genuine involvement with music were impressive. The kid has gigged constantly, shedding and gaining new variegated iterations, and now, at 21, has perfected his approach, a strikingly individualistic brand of angular, oft-minor-keyed, oddball rock that definitely rates him as one of L.A.’s top underappreciated young badasses. This multimedia affair, presented by Woodcock, longtime collaborator Peter Galindo and animator Samantha Lane, is an ambitious concoction of projected animation, displays of visual art and performances by a gaggle of untamed, like-minded noisemakers.

—Jonny Whiteside

Mark Lanegan

@ TERAGRAM BALLROOM

Pacific Northwest icon Lanegan has an unerringly suave way of singing the holy bejesus out of any kind of song he puts his soul and mind to. His gruff baritone has worked minor miracles in a weird variety of musical settings, from his work with Screaming Trees, Gutter Twins and Mad Season to Queens of the Stone Age, Isobel Campbell and more. While his affection for American folk and blues has inspired past works, Lanegan has more recently imbued his moody, melancholy songs with gothy, electronic filigrees that fit this gritty singer to a T. That’s a sound inspired by his recent reissues of Romantic Decay and Queens of the Stone Age’s Temple of the Dog, co-produced by Lanegan’s long-time musical partner, Alain Johannes (QOTSA, Chris Cornell), and highlighted by guest studio pals including Josh Homme and Afghan Whigs’ Greg Dulli.

—John Payne

Yestival with Yes, Todd Rundgren, Carl Palmer

@ MICROSOFT THEATER

In observance of their unlikely yet welcome fifth decade, Yes take it on the road again with Yestival, a celebration of progressive rock featuring recent Rock and Roll Hall of Famers Yes along with Todd Rundgren and Carl Palmer’s ELP Legacy. Yes — currently, original guitarist Steve Howe, semi-original drummer Alan White (with Howe’s son Dylan accompanying him on drums), keyboardist Geoff Downes, singer Jon Davison and bassist Billy Sherwood — will perform the 1972 Yes album Fragile in its entirety; its monster hit “Roundabout” boasts one of the prettiest little acoustic guitar filigrees in prog-rock. Todd “Hello It’s Me” Rundgren delves deeply into his usual forward-thinking pop progressiveness, while Carl Palmer’s ELP Legacy plays highlights from the catalog of Emerson, Lake & Palmer — of which Palmer has recently become the sole surviving member.

—David Cotner

Foreigner, Cheap Trick

@ GREEK THEATRE

Cheap Trick’s 18th studio album, We’re All Alright!, is widely being hailed as one of the Rockford, Illinois, quartet’s best records since their late-’70s/early-’80s heyday, but it isn’t as consistently satisfying and adventurous as 2003’s underrated classic, Special One. Nonetheless, apart from several generic tracks, the record has some stirring moments, ranging from the fast, punk intensity of “Nowhere” to the more bombastic yet grandly majestic Beatlesque ballad “The Rest of My Life.” There’s a little Dylansh in the jangling “She’s Alright” and a charming spectral glassiness on the acoustic-based “Floating Down.” Foreigner haven’t released anything new this decade, but they received a jolt of energy when original singer Lou Gramm and fellow founding members Al Greenwood and Ian McDonald briefly rejoined the band at a recent gig in New York.

—Falling James

L.A. Witch

@ LEVITT PAVILION MACARTHUR PARK

L.A. Witch conjure a strangely enchanting sound that draws from punk and garage rock, but it’s also infused with tons of reverb-laden atmosphere that imbues the local trio’s songs with a ghostly, mysterious and unsettling sense of dread. “Baby in Blue Jeans,” from L.A. Witch’s upcoming, self-titled album, received a jolt of energy when original singer Lou Gramm and fellow founding members Al Greenwood and Ian McDonald briefly rejoined the band at a recent gig in New York.

—Falling James

Mark Lanegan Band

@ TERAGRAM BALLROOM

Pacific Northwest icon Lanegan has an unerringly suave way of singing the holy bejesus out of any kind of song he puts his soul and mind to. His gruff baritone has worked minor miracles in a weird variety of musical settings, from his work with Screaming Trees, Gutter Twins and Mad Season to Queens of the Stone Age, Isobel Campbell and more. While his affection for American folk and blues has inspired past works, Lanegan has more recently imbued his moody, melancholy songs with gothy, electronic filigrees that fit this gritty singer to a T. That’s a sound inspired by his recent reissues of Romantic Decay and Queens of the Stone Age’s Temple of the Dog, co-produced by Lanegan’s long-time musical partner, Alain Johannes (QOTSA, Chris Cornell), and highlighted by guest studio pals including Josh Homme and Afghan Whigs’ Greg Dulli.

—John Payne

Yestival with Yes, Todd Rundgren, Carl Palmer

@ MICROSOFT THEATER

In observance of their unlikely yet welcome fifth decade, Yes take it on the road again with Yestival, a celebration of progressive rock featuring recent Rock and Roll Hall of Famers Yes along with Todd Rundgren and Carl Palmer’s ELP Legacy. Yes — currently, original guitarist Steve Howe, semi-original drummer Alan White (with Howe’s son Dylan accompanying him on drums), keyboardist Geoff Downes, singer Jon Davison and bassist Billy Sherwood — will perform the 1972 Yes album Fragile in its entirety; its monster hit “Roundabout” boasts one of the prettiest little acoustic guitar filigrees in prog-rock. Todd “Hello It’s Me” Rundgren delves deeply into his usual forward-thinking pop progressiveness, while Carl Palmer’s ELP Legacy plays highlights from the catalog of Emerson, Lake & Palmer — of which Palmer has recently become the sole surviving member.

—David Cotner

Foreigner, Cheap Trick

@ GREEK THEATRE

Cheap Trick’s 18th studio album, We’re All Alright!, is widely being hailed as one of the Rockford, Illinois, quartet’s best records since their late-’70s/early-’80s heyday, but it isn’t as consistently satisfying and adventurous as 2003’s underrated classic, Special One. Nonetheless, apart from several generic tracks, the record has some stirring moments, ranging from the fast, punk intensity of “Nowhere” to the more bombastic yet grandly majestic Beatlesque ballad “The Rest of My Life.” There’s a little Dylansh in the jangling “She’s Alright” and a charming spectral glassiness on the acoustic-based “Floating Down.” Foreigner haven’t released anything new this decade, but they received a jolt of energy when original singer Lou Gramm and fellow founding members Al Greenwood and Ian McDonald briefly rejoined the band at a recent gig in New York.

—Falling James

L.A. Witch

@ LEVITT PAVILION MACARTHUR PARK

L.A. Witch conjure a strangely enchanting sound that draws from punk and garage rock, but it’s also infused with tons of reverb-laden atmosphere that imbues the local trio’s songs with a ghostly, mysterious and unsettling sense of dread. “Baby in Blue Jeans,” from L.A. Witch’s upcoming, self-titled album, received a jolt of energy when original singer Lou Gramm and fellow founding members Al Greenwood and Ian McDonald briefly rejoined the band at a recent gig in New York.

—Falling James
MCCABE’S GUITAR SHOP:
LOS GLOBOS:
The HI HAT:
CORNELIUS PROJECTS:
CIVIC CENTER STUDIOS:
BOOTLEG THEATER:
AMOEBA MUSIC:
ALEX’S BAR:

CLUBS

Theo Los Angeles
8901 Sunset Blvd., West Hollywood.

Merry Christmas, Scale the Summit, The Fine Numbers, Sun., Aug. 27, 8 p.m., $25.

The Mark Lanegan Band, Mon., Aug. 28, 9 p.m., TBA.

KINETO: An Audiovisual Experience, with Facial, Ball, Sun., Aug. 27, 5:30 p.m.; Soul Rising, Sun., Aug. 27, 8 p.m. See Music Pick. Clairvoid Fest, with Dead Dawn, ExSage, The Winter, Umm, Fri., Aug. 25, 8:30 p.m., $15 (see Music Pick).

The Roxxy: 9009 Sunset Blvd., West Hollywood.
The Rocket Summer, 888, Fri., Aug. 25, 8 p.m. Steel Panther, Mon., Aug. 28, 9 p.m., $26. Plini, Tue., Aug. 29, 8 p.m. The Fever, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $23.33.

The Smell: 247 S. Main St. Loveless, Sun., Aug. 27, 8 p.m., $5. See Music Pick.

The Troubadour: 9081 Santa Monica Blvd., West Hollywood.
Tasha Beier, Teddy Jones, Fri., Aug. 25, 7:30 p.m. $15. Sawyer Fredericks, Gabriel Wolfchild & the Light, Mon., Aug. 28, 8 p.m., $20. Thee Oh Sees, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $27.50 (see Music Pick).

The Viper Room: 929 S. Broadway. DJs Farah, Aug. 25-26, 8:30 p.m., TBA. Jazz vs. Cancer, Air. Hannah Dexter, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m. The Sabine Band, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m., $15. William Tyler, Mon., Aug. 28, 8 p.m. The Fever, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $25.

Jazz & Blues

The Echoplex: 1154 Glendale Blvd. Dub Club, a night of reggae with DJs Tom Chasteen, Roy Corderoy, The Dungeonmaster, Boss Harmony, Wednesdays, 9 p.m., $7.

Los Globos: 3040 W. Sunset Blvd. Willy Wonka Kiki Ball, Sun., Aug. 27, 5-30 p.m.; Soul Rising, Sun., Aug. 27, 2017; E.N. Young, Thu., Aug. 31, 8:30 p.m., TBA. Kreed, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m., free.

Maui Sugar Mill Saloon: 18399 Ventura Blvd., Tarzana. Kristeen Young, Giam Skankrs, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m., free.

Chely Wright, Sun., Aug. 27, 8 p.m., $25.

The Rooxy: 9009 Sunset Blvd., West Hollywood.
The Rocket Summer, 888, Fri., Aug. 25, 8 p.m. Steel Panther, Mon., Aug. 28, 9 p.m., $26. Plini, Tue., Aug. 29, 8 p.m. The Fever, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $33.33.

Silverlake Lounge: 2906 Sunset Blvd.
Sleeplust, Color Caves, Mon., Aug. 28, 8 p.m., free. Snowball II, Teleskopes, Black Sea, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $8.

The Smell: 247 S. Main St. No Age, Gun Outfit, Sun., Aug. 27, 8 p.m., $6. See Music Pick.

The Troubadour: 9081 Santa Monica Blvd., West Hollywood.
Tasha Beier, Teddy Jones, Fri., Aug. 25, 7:30 p.m. The Mark Lanegan Band, Mon., Aug. 28, 9 p.m., $27.50 (see Music Pick). San Cisco, Tue., Aug. 29, 9 p.m. Conner Malloy, Wed., Aug. 30, 9 p.m. Russell Malone, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $20.

The Troubadour: 9081 Santa Monica Blvd., West Hollywood.
Tasha Beier, Teddy Jones, Fri., Aug. 25, 7:30 p.m. The Mark Lanegan Band, Mon., Aug. 28, 9 p.m., $27.50 (see Music Pick). San Cisco, Tue., Aug. 29, 9 p.m. Conner Malloy, Wed., Aug. 30, 9 p.m. Russell Malone, Thu., Aug. 31, 9 p.m., $20.

The Lighthouse Cafe: 630 Pico Ave., Hermosa Beach.
The Sam Hirsh Quartet, Sat., Aug. 26, 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m., free. The Charles Owens Big Band, Sun., Aug. 27, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., $10. The Noah Bernstein Quartet, Wed., Aug. 30, 6-9 p.m., free.

Country & Folk

The Echoplex: 1154 Glendale Blvd. Dub Club, a night of reggae with DJs Tom Chasteen, Roy Corderoy, The Dungeonmaster, Boss Harmony, Wednesdays, 9 p.m., $7.

Los Globos: 3040 W. Sunset Blvd. Club '90s, Fridays, 10 p.m.; Kingstone, Fri., Aug. 25, 10 p.m. Bootie L.A., Saturdays, 10 p.m., $5 & $10. Rayvon, Thu., Aug. 31, 8:30 p.m., TBA.

The Satellite: 1717 Silver Lake Blvd. Dance Yourself Clean, Saturdays, 5 p.m., free-$2.

Short Stop: 1455 Sunset Blvd. Super Soul Sundays, Sundays, 10 p.m., free. Motown on Mondays, Mondays, 9 p.m., free.

The Theatre At Ace Hotel: 929 S. Broadway. Djs Liz Tooley, Bert Hoover, Erik Lake, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m., free.

Union Nightclub: 4067 W. Pico Blvd. Nofran, Tofu, Sarrush, Todapi, Yepes, Fri., Aug. 25, 9 p.m.,

Brunch at the Races

New Restaurants Added

Tickets on Sale Now

Sunday, October 15, 2017 • 11am - 2pm • Santa Anita Park

Brunchattheraces.laweekly.com

Let’s Go!
SUNDAY, AUG. 26

THE DEAD DAISIES: With The Dives, 9 p.m. El Rey Theatre, 5515 W. Sunset Blvd. See Music Pick.

ARTYPIA: With Dub Djs, 8 p.m., $25-$60. Union Station, 800 N. Alameda St. Ste 203.

BRYAN FERRY: With Circel, 7:30 p.m. ELP Legacy, 7:30 p.m. Microsoft Theater, 777 Chick Hearn Court. See Music Pick.

MARK DE CLIVE-LOWE: 8 p.m., free. California Plaza, 350 S. Grand Ave. See Music Pick.

MEN: With Monakr, 7 p.m. El Rey Theatre. See Music Pick.

MOEIN: 6:30 p.m., free. The Broad Stage.

SYLVAN ESSO: 8 p.m., $42.50. Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

KHALID: With The Shelters, 8:30 p.m., $35. The Wiltern.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

AROPELLA: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

IT’S NOT DEAD FESTIVAL: With Rancid, Dropkick Murphys, Buzzcocks, The Selecter, The Adicts, GBH, Channel 3, Slaughter & the Dogs, The Casualties, Off!, Left Alone, Kevin Seconds, 12 p.m., $42.50, Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

TROMBONE SHORTY & ORLEANS AVENUE: With Monakr, 9 p.m. El Rey Theatre. See Music Pick.

FOREIGNER, CHEAP TRICK: 6 p.m., $29.95-$399.99. The Joint, Hard Rock Hotel.

BRYAN FERRY: 8 p.m. Anson Ford Amphitheatre.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 30

MARK DE CLIVE-LOWE: 8 p.m., free. California Plaza, 350 S. Grand Ave. See Music Pick.

ROCKY DAWUNI: 8 p.m., free. Levitt Pavilion Pasadena, 85 E. Holly St., Pasadena.

IT’S NOT DEAD FESTIVAL: With Rancid, Dropkick Murphys, Buzzcocks, The Selecter, The Adicts, GBH, Channel 3, Slaughter & the Dogs, The Casualties, Off!, Left Alone, Kevin Seconds, 12 p.m., $42.50, Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

BRYAN FERRY: 8 p.m. Anson Ford Amphitheatre.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 30

FOREIGNER, CHEAP TRICK: 6 p.m., $29.95-$399.99. The Joint, Hard Rock Hotel.

MEN: With Monakr, 7 p.m. El Rey Theatre. See Music Pick.

SYLVAN ESSO: 8 p.m., $42.50. Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

ARTYPIA: With Dub Djs, 8 p.m., $25-$60. Union Station, 800 N. Alameda St. Ste 203.

BRYAN FERRY: With Circel, 7:30 p.m. ELP Legacy, 7:30 p.m. Microsoft Theater, 777 Chick Hearn Court. See Music Pick.

MOEIN: 6:30 p.m., free. The Broad Stage.

SYLVAN ESSO: 8 p.m., $42.50. Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

KHALID: With The Shelters, 8:30 p.m., $35. The Wiltern.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

AROPELLA: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

IT’S NOT DEAD FESTIVAL: With Rancid, Dropkick Murphys, Buzzcocks, The Selecter, The Adicts, GBH, Channel 3, Slaughter & the Dogs, The Casualties, Off!, Left Alone, Kevin Seconds, 12 p.m., $42.50, Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

TROMBONE SHORTY & ORLEANS AVENUE: With Monakr, 9 p.m. El Rey Theatre. See Music Pick.

FOREIGNER, CHEAP TRICK: 6 p.m., $29.95-$399.99. The Joint, Hard Rock Hotel.

BRYAN FERRY: 8 p.m. Anson Ford Amphitheatre.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 30

FOREIGNER, CHEAP TRICK: 6 p.m., $29.95-$150. The Greek Theatre, 2700 N. Vermont Ave.

TROMBONE SHORTY & ORLEANS AVENUE: With St. Paul & the Broken Bones, Lake Street Dive, 8 p.m., $29-$68. Hollywood Bowl.

THURSDAY, AUG. 31

THE DRAMATICS, EVELYN “CHAMPAGNE” KING: 8 p.m. The Novo by Microsoft, 800 W. Olympic Blvd.

L.A. WITCH: 7:30 p.m., free. Levitt Pavilion at Figat7th, 735 S. Figueroa St.

ARTPIA: With Dub Djs, 8 p.m., $25-$60. Union Station, 800 N. Alameda St. Ste 203.

BRYAN FERRY: With Circel, 7:30 p.m. ELP Legacy, 7:30 p.m. Microsoft Theater, 777 Chick Hearn Court. See Music Pick.

MOEIN: 6:30 p.m., free. The Broad Stage.

SYLVAN ESSO: 8 p.m., $42.50. Glen Helen Amphitheater, 2575 Glen Helen Parkway, San Bernardino. See Music Pick.

KHALID: 8 p.m., $29.50 & $34.50. The Novo.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 30

FOREIGNER, CHEAP TRICK: 6 p.m., $29.95-$150. The Greek Theatre, 2700 N. Vermont Ave.

TROMBONE SHORTY & ORLEANS AVENUE: With St. Paul & the Broken Bones, Lake Street Dive, 8 p.m., $29-$68. Hollywood Bowl.

THURSDAY, AUG. 31

THE DRAMATICS, EVELYN “CHAMPAGNE” KING: 8 p.m. The Novo by Microsoft, 800 W. Olympic Blvd.

L.A. WITCH: 7:30 p.m., free. Levitt Pavilion at Figat7th, 735 S. Figueroa St.

ARTPIA: With Dub Djs, 8 p.m., $25-$60. Union Station, 800 N. Alameda St. Ste 203.

BRYAN FERRY: With Circel, 7:30 p.m. ELP Legacy, 7:30 p.m. Microsoft Theater, 777 Chick Hearn Court. See Music Pick.
Weed Can Do It!

Labor Day Weekend Deals!

9/1 - FREE FLOWER!
MUST DONATE 50+, PRESELECTED FLOWER, 9/1 ONLY

9/2 - FREE WAX!
MUST DONATE 50+, PRESELECTED WAX, 9/2 ONLY

9/3 - FREE EDIBLE!
MUST DONATE 50+, PRESELECTED EDIBLE, 9/3 ONLY

9/4 - FREE OASIS DISPOSABLE VAPE!
MUST DONATE 60+, 9/4 ONLY

*ALL OFFERS ARE WHILE SUPPLIES LAST

DOCTOR PICO WEST

BEST PRICES IN LA!

24/7 VERIFICATION
New Patients

* $30
Renewals

* $20

24/7 VERIFICATION
Professional photo ID cards

NEW PATIENTS

2267 W. Pico Blvd. Los Angeles, CA 90006
MEDICAL MARIJUANA EVALUATIONS

*ALL DOCTORS LICENSED BY CALIFORNIA MEDICAL BOARD

323-251-0058

The Cannary
11309 Venice Blvd. I Los Angeles CA 90066
(310) 313-5553 I www.thecannaryla.com

DOWNTOWN PATIENT GROUP

1320 MATEO ST LOS ANGELES, CA 90021 - (213) 747-3386

UPGRADE YOUR FTP 1/8TH TO TOP SHELF BUDS

9/1-9/4 DONATE $75 GET $10 OFF
DONATE $100 GET $15 OFF
DONATE $150 GET $20 OFF

ALL DOCTORS LICENSED BY CALIFORNIA MEDICAL BOARD

*TERMS & CONDITIONS APPLY FOR PROMO PRICES

323-251-0058

2267 W. Pico Blvd. Los Angeles, CA 90006
MEDICAL MARIJUANA EVALUATIONS

*MAKE SURE TO BRING YOUR DOCTOR’S RECOMMENDATION AND CA I.D. OR PROOF OF RESIDENCY WITH AN I.D.

CHOICE BETWEEN 10% OFF TOTAL DONATION OR
UPGRADE FIRST 1/8TH TO 5G FOR FREE
(EVERY FTP WILL ALSO RECEIVE A FREE HOUSE JOINT)

TERMS AND CONDITIONS: NO CASH VALUE. OFFER NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER PROMOTIONAL DEAL. OFFER VALID FOR QUALIFYING PATIENTS ONLY.

Nature’s Cure

5300 W Century Blvd STE 124
Los Angeles CA 90045
(310) 645-0173

party with modoLO’s LUCHADOR FOR YOUR CHANCE TO WIN TICKETS TO KAAABOO!

Enter to win at laweekly.com/free/luchamodelo

WALK-IN WELCOME + 24 HOUR VERIFICATION + ID CARDS + 100% PRIVATE/CONFIDENTIAL + CULTIVATION LICENSES SPECIAL

NIRVANA CLINIC

MEDICAL MARIJUANA EVALUATIONS

4511 W. SUNSET BLVD • LOS ANGELES, CA 90027 • 323-663-4444

REAL DOCTOR ON SITE + ATM AVAILABLE + MONDAY-SATURDAY 11AM-7PM & SUNDAY 11AM-6PM

NIRVANA-CLINIC.COM

RENEWAL FROM ANY DOCTOR

$25

NEW PATIENTS

$35
Behavioral Research Specialists, LLC
Paid Participation Available
Depression - Anxiety - Bipolar - Schizophrenia - Pain - Alzheimer's
Opiate Addiction - Diabetes - Insomnia - Asthma - ADHD - Hypertension
High Cholesterol - Impaired - Phase I-IV - Pediatrics - PTSD - Restless Leg

230 N. Maryland Ave.
Suit 207, Glendale, CA 91206
888-255-5798 Ext. 1
www.brstrials.com
info@brstrials.com

The Premier Dispensary of Los Angeles

MONDAY
20% Off All Concentrates & Cartridges

TUESDAY
Buy 2 Get 1 Free On Any Flowers

WEDNESDAY
50% Off All Glass (Plus 20% Off Flowers/Concentrates with 20 or more on glass)

THURSDAY
Buy 2 Get 1 Free On All Joints

FRIDAY
50 Cap on All Mid/Top Shelf 1/8ths

SATURDAY
Buy 2 Get 1 Free On All Edibles

SUNDAY
20% Off All CBD Products

(424) 832-7262
2000 Cotner Ave, Los Angeles, CA 90025 www.bse420.com

The Chronicles
All your medical marijuana needs in one place.

ROBERT PALLAS M.D.
Medical Marijuana Evaluations

RENEWALS ANY DOCTOR
NEW PATIENTS

$25*
$35*

24-hour online & phone verification
Open Mon-Sat 12pm-7pm
Walk-ins Welcomed

*Must present this ad to redeem special offer

11312 Venice Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90066
(310) 313-3161

100% CONFIDENTIAL!
Hours Mon-Sun:
9am-7pm daily

562.519.3669

4313 Atlantic Ave
Long Beach, CA 90807
(Carson and San Antonio/Bixby Knolls)

4344 Eagle Rock Blvd
Los Angeles, CA 90041
(cross-street York Blvd)

EXEMPTIONS AVAILABLE

THE DOCTORS

OPEN 7 DAYS FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE
NOW THREE LOCATIONS

HOLLYWOOD
1439 N. Highland Ave., Hollywood, CA 90028
Cross Street Sunset • (323) 463-5000 • (323) 463-2222
7am to 7pm Monday through Saturday • Sunday from 10am to 6:30pm

LOS ANGELES
1155 NORTH Vermont Ave. #200, Los Angeles, CA 90029
(323) 463-5000 • (323) 463-2222
7am to 7pm Monday through Saturday • Sunday from 10am to 6:30pm

RESEDA
6650 Reseda Blvd., Suite 101-B, Reseda, CA 91335
(818)654-5882 and (818)370-7379
7am to 7pm Monday through Saturday • Sunday from 10am to 6:30pm

OPEN SUNDAYS AND EVENINGS TILL 7:30

AUGUST SPECIALS!!!
FREE GIFT WITH EVERY ID CARD PURCHASE

*$25 *$35

For Renewals
WALK-INS WELcomed

For New Patients
SAME LOCATION FOR 4 YEARS

www.TheRecommendationStation.com

Behavioral Research Specialists, LLC
Paid Participation Available
Depression - Anxiety - Bipolar - Schizophrenia - Pain - Alzheimer's
Opiate Addiction - Diabetes - Insomnia - Asthma - ADHD - Hypertension
High Cholesterol - Impaired - Phase I-IV - Pediatrics - PTSD - Restless Leg

230 N. Maryland Ave.
Suit 207, Glendale, CA 91206
888-255-5798 Ext. 1
www.brstrials.com
info@brstrials.com

LA WEEKLY
44
| 44
| 44
| 44}

24-HOUR
VERIFICATION
(LIVE AND ONLINE)
+ PROMO PRICES
+ TERMS & CONDITIONS APPLY

All patients are seen by a California Licensed MD • Medical Board Requirement

www.TheRecommendationStation.com

Behavioral Research Specialists, LLC
Paid Participation Available
Depression - Anxiety - Bipolar - Schizophrenia - Pain - Alzheimer's
Opiate Addiction - Diabetes - Insomnia - Asthma - ADHD - Hypertension
High Cholesterol - Impaired - Phase I-IV - Pediatrics - PTSD - Restless Leg

230 N. Maryland Ave.
Suit 207, Glendale, CA 91206
888-255-5798 Ext. 1
www.brstrials.com
info@brstrials.com

LA WEEKLY
44
| 44
| 44
| 44}
WE’VE MOVED!

8085 Webb Ave. North Hollywood 91605

North Hollywood Compassionate Caregivers

$25 CAP

$20 1/8TH FOR FIRST-TIME PATIENTS
HAPPY HOUR
11AM TO 6PM
CANOGA @ ROSCOE
8229 Canoga Ave., Canoga Park
818.992.7616
www.xposedclub.com
1/2 OFF ADMISSION BEFORE 7
$5 OFF ADMISSION AFTER 7
1ST SODA FREE
ALCOHOL EXTRA • NO COUPONS ON TUESDAY
WITH AD • LAW • EXP 8/31/17
M-TH 12PM-4AM  FRI 12PM-4AM  SAT 2PM-4AM
SUN 6PM-2AM  LUNCH AND DINNER MENU AVAILABLE
THE ONLY FULL NUDE/ FULL BAR CLUB IN LA
2464 FLETCHER DRIVE
LOS ANGELES CA 90039
www.xposedclub.com
818.992.7616
“EARL MILLER FACEBOOK”
8229 Canoga Ave., Canoga Park
818.992.7616
www.xposedclub.com
M-TH 12PM-3AM  FRI 12PM-4AM  SAT 2PM-4AM
SUN 6PM-2AM  LUNCH AND DINNER MENU AVAILABLE
L.A.’S PREMIER ADULT ENTERTAINMENT TOTALLY NUDE
THE GENTLEMEN’S CLUB
Not just a strip club but an experience...

Weekly Specials
SEX Y SUN D AYS
$20 ONE SONG COUCH DANCE
MONDAY MADNESS
$100 10 MIN VIP DANCE
TOPLESS TUESDAYS
$30 TOPLESS DANCE
WACKY WEDNESDAYS
$60 FOUR SONG COUCH DANCE THROW BACK THURSDAYS
$160 20 MIN VIP DANCE

NOW TAKING AUDITIONS
Come here for your bachelor and divorce parties
(818) 552-3687 : 18+ Welcome with IDs
ATM & Valet Parking Available
SUN - THUR 12pm - 4am
FRI - SAT 12pm - 5am
5175 W. San Fernando Rd, Los Angeles, CA 90039

www.thegentlemensclub.net

COMING SOON:
MAYWEATHER

Vertigo World Cup

SHOWGIRLS

WE ACCEPT ALL CLUB COUPONS
TOTALLY FREE ENTRY AND $10 BIKINI DANCES FROM 12PM - 7.30PM.
COME AND ENJOY THE SHOW!

SPECIALS
MONDAY - $100 1/2 HOUR NUDE DANCES ALL DAY & ALL NIGHT
TUESDAY - $50 10 MINUTE NUDE DANCES
WEDNESDAY - $70 15 MINUTE NUDE DANCE
THURSDAY - $80 20 MIN VIP NUDE DANCE
FRIDAY / SATURDAY - LAP DANCE SPECIALS ALL NIGHT LONG!
SUNDAY - $200 30 MIN CHAMPAGNE ROOM

GROUP AND BACHELOR PARTY DISCOUNTS
FRI - SAT OPEN UNTIL 5AM

12147 VICTORY BLVD. (BY LAUREL CANYON) NORTH HOLLYWOOD, CA
VIPSHOWGIRLS.COM 818.760.1122

30% PAYOUT FOR DANCERS — THE LOWEST IN THE INDUSTRY • TIPS ARE NOT MANDATORY

FIGHT DAY FOOD & DRINK SPECIALS
SAT AUG 26 9PM ET 6PM PT
LIVE ON PAY-PER-VIEW

FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS COUPON
NOT VALID ON AUGUST 26. SPECIAL COVER CHARGE WILL APPLY

FULL BAR & KITCHEN • OPEN DAILY FROM 11:30AM-2AM
DAILY LUNCH SPECIALS AND HAPPY HOUR
COME JOIN US FOR HAPPY HOUR DAILY FROM 4PM TO 7PM.
LUNCH SPECIALS ARE SERVED MONDAY THRU FRIDAY 11:30AM TILL 2PM.
11434 W PICO BLVD • LOS ANGELES, CA 90064 • 310-477-4379
FANTASYISLANDLA.COM

FOR MORE INFO VISIT:
WWW.FANTASYISLANDLA.COM
YOUR #1 SOURCE FOR THE ADULT MARKET & INDUSTRY IN LOS ANGELES AREA!

ADULT WAREHOUSE OUTLET

We are open to the public and wholesale customers with products at unbeatable wholesale prices.

WE HAVE A HUGE SELECTION OF:

- EXOTIC DANCER SHOES
- RAVE WEAR, REALISTIC DILDOS,
- PENIS ENLARGER PUMPS,
- MEN’S REALISTIC MASTURBATORS,
- PENIS CYBERSKIN EXTENSIONS,
- LINGERIE, LUBES & CREAMS,
- SEX ENHANCERS PILLS,
- BACHELORETTE FAVORS

Thousands of Adult Toys
Plenty of Lubes, Oils and Enhancers
Largest selection of DVDs in San Fernando Valley

ORDER ONLINE WWW.ADULTWAREHOUSEOUTLET.COM

WE OFFER DISCREET SHIPPING ON YOUR PACKAGE!

8126 VAN NUYS BLVD. #2
VAN NUYS, CA 91402
818-985-2255

7118 RESEDA BLVD
RESEDA, CA 91335
818-514-6655

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

ORDER ONLINE WWW.ADULTWAREHOUSEOUTLET.COM
WE OFFER DISCREET SHIPPING ON YOUR PACKAGE!

Playmates or soul mates, you’ll find them on MegaMates*

Always FREE to listen and reply to ads!

Los Angeles:
(213) 687-7663
1-888-MegaMates* www.megamates.com 18+

NEW DANCE SPECIALS
Monday: $30 Nude All Day

COUPLES SPECIALS
Thursday: 2 for 1 Admission
Buy 1 drink, get 1 free
Enjoy lapdance together

FREE BUFFET
Friday: 12PM - 2 PM

FREE ADMISSION
FROM OPEN TILL 9PM (WITH THIS AD)

Always Hiring
Beautiful Dancers
(no experience necessary - we will train)

10624 HAUGHTON BLVD. LENNOX, CA
310.671.9073 • JESTRIP.COM
MON-THUR 10AM TIL 2AM FRID-SAT 10AM TIL 4AM SUN 6PM TIL 2AM
FREE PARKING • EXP 10/31/2017

LEXANDRA

DIGITAL AUDIT FREE

ADULT CLASSIFIEDS
To Advertise
IN LA WEEKLY
310.574.7312

DIGITAL CHATLINE

Livelinks - Chat Lines
Fart, chat and date! Talk to sexy real singles in your area. Call now!
1-844-959-5771

Make a Connection, Talk to Sexy Singles
Real People, Free Chat. FREE now!
Call 213-316-0225

AMERICA’S HOTTEST GAY CHATLINE!

Try FREE: 213-316-0225
More Local Numbers: 1-800-926-6000

The hottest place to meet Latinos!

Try FREE: 213-316-0876
More Local Numbers: 1-855-831-1111

WHO ARE YOU AFTER DARK?

TRY FOR FREE
213-316-0880
ADULT

Adult Massage

- Kellie
  Independent sexy white masseuse, 39.
  Gives fantastic rubs! Encino.
  (818) 384-0203

Adult Employment

- Sanctuary Studios
  (Formerly Passive Arts)
  7000+ sq ft fully equipped BDSM facility. Open 7 days.
  310-910-0525 SanctuaryStudiosLAX.com

Dance/Topless/Barmaids/Security Guards

- Attractive. Will train, no exp nec.
  Excellent tips. 2 SFV locations.
  818-340-1188 818-999-3187 aft 12pm
  818-341-0134

Adult Classifieds

- To Advertise
  IN LA WEEKLY
  ADULT CLASSIFIEDS
  310.574.7312

---

ADULT **

The Dominion

LA’s most respected BDSM club since 1980!

- Safe • Sane • Consensual
- Female owned & operated
- 310-559-7111 www.Dominionsm.com

Kellie

Independent sexy white masseuse, 39.
Gives fantastic rubs! Encino.
(818) 384-0203

999 Roses

422 S. Western Ave #208
213.436.8804 323.931.1166

Dominion

LA’s most respected BDSM club since 1980!

- Safe • Sane • Consensual
- Female owned & operated
- 310-559-7111 www.Dominionsm.com

---

Find Your Digital Footprint

Local Search • Organic Search • Paid Media • Social Programmatic • RTB • Web Development

Get started today with a FREE digital audit vdigitalservices.com

---

Grand Opening

Total Care Spa

9am-9pm
422 S. Western Ave #208
213.436.8804 323.931.1166

---

999 Roses

14291 Euclid St. #D111
Garden Grove
714-554-3936

---

Asian Massage

$10 OFF 1 HR.
11am (818) 888-6298
22055 SHERMAN WAY, CANOGA PARK, CA 91303

---

HIDÉKO

Spa, Massage, Japanese

Grand Open

Opening Special: $100/hr

The High-end MASSAGE therapy with authentic JAPANESE EXPERIENCE

Regular: $300/hr Member: $180/hr

12211 WILSHIRE BLVD. LOS ANGELES, CA 90025
Tel. 310.622.2615
hidekospa.com

Hours: 10 am - 10 pm 7 days
Health

PREGNANT? CONSIDERING ADOPTION?
Call us FREE: 1-888-790-8222
Expenses: Housing, Medical, and some support of birth mother. Call 24/7: 877-362-2401

ANOXIOUS? DEPRESSED? RELATION ISSUES?
Call Today 626.584.5555

MALE ENLARGEMENT PUMP

Home Services

431 Electronics

554 Misc. Home Services

Commercial

520 Financial Services

525 Legal Services

Law Offices Of Kate Raynor

Go With The Best!
1(888) LAWAYER

LOOKING FOR ★ Mega Stars Telemarketers in the Home Improvement Field. Skills in selling fully qualified app’ts.

Up to $15 per hour.

Telemarketers Needed

Market Research Analyst. Bachelor’s degree preferred, plus one year of experience. Queue to resume to the attention of Gabrielle Sokol, one Church International, Inc., 11039 Mockingbird Street, North Hollywood, CA 90061.

Eric 310-409-3683
510 Office Ave
Los Angeles 90023

Employment

Accountant: prepare tax returns and examine financial statements. Install accounting and systems for efficiency. B.S. in Mathematics or related field. Req’d. Resume to Savini Wheels, LLC (dba. Gold of road), 1199 E. La Palma Ave., E. Anaheim, CA 92806

Accounting Manager: prepare tax returns and examine financial statements. Install accounting and systems for efficiency. Bachelor’s degree or related field required. Resume to BCB HARA Sushi, Inc., 12222 Whittier Blvd. #101, LA, CA 90053

Market Research Analyst. Bachelor’s degree preferred, plus one year of experience. Queue to resume to the attention of Gabrielle Sokol, one Church International, Inc., 11039 Mockingbird Street, North Hollywood, CA 90061.

Eric 310-409-3683
510 Office Ave
Los Angeles 90023

Business Analyst: Transom Consulting Group. Los Angeles, CA. Conduct research and build prototypes. Email: melanie@transomconsulting.com

Call Today
1-888-LAWAYER

Business

3914 Unruh
Los Angeles, CA 90061

INSIDE SALES REPS NEEDED! SSSSSSSSSSSSSSSS

Call Today 626.584.5555

Technology

Software Engineer (Core Services)

Develop data intensive applications using cutting edge Web, engineer software solutions. Min. Resp. bachelor’s degree or foreign equivalent in Information Technology, Computer Engineering or related plus 5 years experience as Software Engineer (Core Services). Software Engineer or related. 5 yrs. experience as Software Engineer, Software Engineer or related. Send resume,的现象.5400 Whitire Blvd., Suite 17, L.A., CA 90024. Job#2115011, Altm. Danna Senier

Health

Free Consultation
1-800-383-9469

Gina & Tony
Sales Rep/Toner

In the BUSINESS of TONER AND OFFICE SUPPLIES.

Choose adoptive family of your choice. Paid living expenses, continued support afterwards. Call us first. Living expenses, PREGNANT? CONSIDERING ADOPTION?

Call 877-362-2401

* Must Be Energetic

Roommates

HOLLYWOOD $495
306 46-6761/323-698-2644
Quart Offices Now Available! Close to Sunset / Vine area. Around the corner from the new “W” Residences. Beautifully renovated building with several offices for rent. Includes all utilities & has access to common area restrooms on each floor. The units start at $499. Dac can be combined for a discounted rate. LEASE TERM NEGOTIABLE

La Weekley Classifieds

3861 Sepulveda Blvd, Culver City | 310-574-7303 | LAWEEKLY.COM/ADINDEX
DUBLAB • ARTISTS • MUSICIANS & MORE!

SATURDAY, AUGUST 26TH, 2017
8PM - 11PM • VIP HOUR 7PM • UNION STATION

ARTOPIA.LAWEEKLY.COM
#ArtopiaLA

PRESENTED BY SCI-Arc

CURATED BY dublab future. roots. radio

21+ EVENT