'TIS THE SEASON TO GET STRONGER, TO BE HEALTHIER, TO TAKE CONTROL
HOLIDAY GIFTS THAT ARE FOOD FOR THE SOUL

BY MICHELE STUEVEN

With more of us cooking at home this year, cookbooks have never been hotter. Pop a bottle of personalized champagne to go with your Forma cheese platter, light up some incense for your Michelle Obama Ritual Palo Santo Holder and get cooking with a little Aster Farms x Potli Cannabis Infused Extra Virgin Olive Oil and Nancy Silverton's latest cookbook. Here are some holiday gift ideas that you can shop and ship while hunkered down.

Santa Monica restaurateur Yunnie Kim Morena has teamed up with Kym Gold of Style Union Home to create a new collection of ritual items, multi-purpose plates, and an exclusive cloud nesting bowl launching December 1st on kimchiavocado.com. The collection ranges from $45 for the Ruth Ceramic Bowl to $185 for the Matilda 3 Piece Ceramic Cloud Spice Bowl Set. Morena chose pieces in colors of grey, white and light blush to reflect her California lifestyle, while also honoring her Korean roots.

That blend can best be seen in the Michelle Ceramic Ritual Palo Santo Mug (named after Kamala Harris, $60 retail). Both items have become daily ritual pieces that have helped Morena herself stay grounded during Covid.

The Matilda Ceramic Cloud Spice bowls (named after Matilda Joslyn Gage, $185 retail) can be used for everything from charcuterie boards to holding your jewelry when cooking or even banchan (small side dishes in Korean cuisine).

The Coco Ceramic Blate (named after Coco Chanel, $70 retail) is a hybrid between a bowl and a plate, and the Stephanie Ceramic Utility Vase (named after Morena’s close friend Stephanie who is a cancer survivor, $85 retail) is the perfect vessel for holding utensils, toothbrushes and chopsticks.

Forma, with locations in Venice and Santa Monica, is known for one of the most extensive collections of domestic and imported cheeses, curated by chef Piero Topputo and co-owner Mario Sabatino and is offering cheese platters, an impressive and stress-free holiday gift. The menu features more than 70 varieties, including bloomy rind, washed-rind, blue veined, truffled, soft and hard cheeses. Each cheese ranges from $13 - $29 for a 4oz. takeout portion.

To make the cheese board process as simple as possible, all cheeses come with accompaniments including dry apricots, dry cranberries, almonds, walnuts, Tarallucci bread, pecan and fruit toasted baguette, honey and marmalade. If selecting cheeses feels a bit intimidating, the team at Forma can walk guests through the process of building a balanced board. Their recommended picks for the holidays include French Triple cream, Fourme D’Ambert, Moliterno with Truffle, Cabra Romero and Red Hawk.

Check out the “Cheese at Home” tab on their online menu to view the full selection. Guests can order online for pickup or delivery (also via Postmates, DoorDash and Caviar) or they can call their nearest Forma location to order for pick-up.

Combining their famed sustainably farmed cannabis with a Tuscan olive blend from the family’s award-winning Campodonico organic farms, Aster Farms in Northern California has partnered with premium pantry goods company Potli for a special holiday drop: Aster Farms x Potli Cannabis Infused Extra Virgin Olive Oil.

Home to both Aster Farms cannabis and Campodonico olives, this limited edition EVOO is an ode to Lake County California’s unique terroir. At 1,300 feet in elevation, across nine-and-a-half acres of volcanic Lacustrine soils, every bottle was harvested with intention using an olive oil blend from Campodonico organic farm and other Lake County olive farms. The Tuscan variety olives, locally blended, are balanced with a single strain of Aster Farm’s sun-grown Watermelon OG. The oil — featuring bold, green and peppery notes — is perfect for promoting relaxation, increasing appetites and senses. Each 8.45 fl oz bottle contains 100mg THC, 8mg CBD, and has a suggested retail price of $35.

Moët & Chandon’s Specially Yours program provides a simple way to personalize gift boxes online in just a few clicks. Upon purchasing a bottle of Impérial Brut or Rosé Impérial, visit moetpersonalization.com to begin the custom-
When customizing the front of the box, you have the option of choosing from a bank of suggested words, or you can choose your own message up to 16 characters. Wine offerings include Moët Impérial Brut (SRP $44,) the Champagne House’s flagship wine, with a golden straw yellow color and bright fruity aromas of apple, pear, white peach and citrus as well as the Moët Rosé Impérial (SRP $60), distinguished by its pink and amber color and bouquet of red fruits and juicy berries. With more of us in the kitchen this year, it’s been a boon for cookbooks.

CHI SPACCA: A New Approach to American Cooking ($30) is Mozzaplex Group Nancy Silverton’s 10th book and is the perfect gift for this holiday season as more of us are cooking at home. The collection of recipes named after her restaurant, which translates to “he or she who cleaves,” includes rubs and spices as well as her grilled tomahawk pork chop with fennel pollen, braised brisket and porcini-rubbed double bone veal chops with roasted onions and brown butter jus. There are also plenty of sides and salads as well to lend comfort to the season. And if meat’s not your beast, The VegNews Guide to Being a Fabulous Vegan: Look Good, Feel Good & Do Good in 30 Days (Hachette Go, 12/15/20, Paperback, $19.99) is an all-in-one, super practical guide to going vegan. The number of people identifying as vegan has increased dramatically in the last three years, thanks to trends like Meatless Mondays and Veganuary and celebrities like Joaquin Phoenix and Mayim Bialik speaking out on the virtues of the plant-based life. Longtime VegNews editor Jasmin Singer shares everything you need to know about the myths and realities of adopting a plant-based life in 30 chapters, broken into daily topics covering every-thing from that inevitable where-do-you-get-your-protein question, to how not to be an ahole vegan. Every chapter ends with a tasty recipe from the VegNews team.

As consumers aim to avoid shopping in stores and ship packages to friends and family they won’t be gathering with this year, shipping carriers will be strained with the surge in online shopping. AmazingClubs.com is an easy and safe gift this holiday season that will keep on giving well into 2021, featuring dozens of top-rated gift of the month clubs. Not only will your loved ones have something to open during the holidays with a printable certificate, but also continue to receive gifts each month. MOTORHEAD

Ace of Spades – Deluxe Collector’s Edition Box Set (BMG)

BY BRETT CALLWOOD

It’s 40 years since British metal icons Motorhead released the Ace of Spades album, and we’re coming up on half a decade since we lost Lemmy. The beloved, gruff-voiced but beautifully warm frontman might have been born in Stoke, England, but he considered Los Angeles his home for much of his life and, famously, was pretty much a part of the furniture at the Rainbow when not on tour.

So it’s important that we celebrate this anniversary appropriately. After all, while Ace of Spades is the band’s fourth album (after the self-titled, Overkill and Bomber), it’s their most iconic and commercially successful. Not that too many Motorhead fans give a shit about commercial success, but still. It peaked at number four in the UK charts and was certified gold. Make of that what you will. Meanwhile, the title track remains the band’s most recognizable song by some distance. It is in fact one of the most recognizable songs that the metal genre has gifted us with, along with Black Sabbath’s “Paranoid” among others.

That album is included in this extensive and exhaustive box set, mastered at half-speed from the original master tapes which, if you’re not a studio-head, essentially means that the quality is improved. Besides that, there’s really not a lot left to be said about the album that hasn’t already been said. It opens with that perfect title track, and the likes of “Love Me Like a Reptile,” “(We Are) the Road Crew,” “Jailbait” and “Bite the Bullet” whizz past at something that would be very difficult to describe as half speed.

It’s no wonder that, back in the late ’70s and early ’80s, punks embraced Motorhead as much as the metal-heads did. Whereas a lot of hard rock albums from this period can sound a little leaden and maybe a bit clunky today, Ace of Spades still sounds fiery, dirty, raw and wonderfully nasty, and it’s dated remarkably well.

So what else do we get in the deluxe box set? Well, much like the equally amazing Made in 1979 box that came out last year, this takes hours and hours of work but is worth every minute. Perhaps casual fans and a curious few can do without a whole record of alternative versions and instrumentals that are packed onto a double album called The Good, the Broke & the Ugly, and a 10” called A Fistful of Instrumentals. It’s a wonderful thing, to be able to hear a classic album take shape; alternative versions of “Ace of Spades,” “(We Are) the Road Crew,” “Jailbait,” etc are practically unrecognizable but for the lyrics, while b-sides such as “Godzilla Akimbo” and “Waltz of the Vampire” are fun to revisit.

So that’s the mass of gorgeous vinyl covers, the book, and the actual box (which comes with a cardboard bullet belt). So that’s the lot. It takes hours and hours to get through everything in the box, but fans will agree that there isn’t a wasted minute. Perhaps casual fans and a curious few can do without a whole record of instrumentals, but there are those of us who wallow in this stuff and this box set delivers.
