THE LAS VEGAS SUMMER PARTY GUIDE 2025

BY MARK STEFANOS

COURTESY XS NIGHTCLUB AT WYNN LAS VEGAS

With EDC Las Vegas this weekend and Memorial Day Weekend the following, Vegas summer party season is officially underway. That means the most robust lineups of DJs this side of the Mississippi will be keeping all the major nightclubs and pool parties stacked til the college football homecomings start again, so start stocking up on that 5-HTP and chugging those electrolytes now.

Club Season on the Strip

The strip continues to offer the city's most premium party experiences. As always, you'll have to battle lines and a little chaos for the most popular spots, and getting in can get pricey, especially if you're trying to get in on-the-spot midday at the pool parties or past midnight for the night events.

But the early bird gets a discount worm, and most clubs have (somewhat) reasonably priced tickets if you buy them online ahead of time. Some even offer free guestlist entry if you get there early enough — find a promoter around the strip during the day and they'll hook you up, or check out websites like lasvegasnightclubs.com, nocovernightclubs.com, freevegasclubpasses.com, or the Discotech app. Free guestlists work especially well if you are a group of women, or men willing to be treated like cattle in one of those sad factory farm documentaries for a while.

The most dedicated partiers should look into the Tao Group Party Pass. Tao Group is now the largest consortium of clubs on the strip, and for about $130 for women and $160 for men, you get unlimited weekend access to Hakkasan, OMNIA, JEWEL, Palm Tree Beach Club, TAO Beach and Nightclub, and Marquee Nightclub and Dayclub, depending on capacity. You have to buy it by 10 p.m. on Saturdays, but you can hop around between clubs as you please, making it your own little club festival.

As per usual, if you've long graduated from Bovine University and money is no object, throw some racks at bottle service and be treated like a VIP.

Many clubs will be hosting pre- and after-parties for EDC, and Memorial Day Weekend will be nonstop everywhere. Here's what to expect at the biggest clubs throughout the summer:

XS and Encore Beach Club: Stretched between the beautiful complexes of The Wynn and Encore, XS and Encore Beach Club still offer some of the best club experiences in town. The parties will rage all summer featuring residents The Chain-smokers, Marshmello, Diplo, Mau P, Odesza and more. On Sunday, May 25, of Memorial Weekend, XS will launch “Sunday MainStage,” a new festival-style production, with an inaugural performance by Yeat.

For the full calendar, visit: wynnsocial.com.

Tao Beach and Nightclub at the Venetian: Tao has been a cornerstone of Vegas partying for 20 years. Tao Beach dayclub will feature big electronic acts like Porter Robinson, Zedd and Deorro, and the nightclub features more Top-40 and rap from DJs Justin Credible, E-Rock and Crespo.

Visit: taogroup.com/venues/palm-tree-beach-club-las-vegas.

LIV at Fountainbleu: A giant club at one of the newest hotels, the Vegas outpost of the storied LIV will have a heck of a lineup Memorial Weekend at both their night and “Beach” dayclub, including John Summit, Disco Lines and Dom Dolla.

Visit: livnightclub.com/las-vegas.

Draï's at the Cromwell: The top dedicated hip-hop venue in town, Draï's has multiple levels, an after-hours and dayclub. Memorial Day Weekend will feature favorites Jeezy, Gunna and Lil Wayne, and throughout the summer look forward to Ty Dolla $ign, Dababy and Wiz Khalifa.

Visit: draigroup.com/las-vegas/

Zouk and Ayu at Resorts World: You may know Zouk from the new club opened in Hollywood, but the Vegas version is bigger and just as high-tech, with premium programming all summer long between their Zouk Nightclub and Ayu Dayclub. Memorial weekend will feature Kaskade and DJ Snoopadelic (yes, that's Snoop Dogg), and they will be celebrating their four-year anniversary in June with DJ Snake and Lil Wayne.

Visit: zoukgrouplv.com

Hakkasan at MGM Grand: One of the biggest clubs on the strip, Hakkasan is where you can find a mix of electronic and rap acts like DJ Pauly D, Mustard and Four Color Zack.

Marquee at Cosmopolitan: Located in the young and fun Cosmo, Marquee continues to be a destination, featuring both clubs both day and night. Another in the Tao Group collection, acts this summer include Chris Lake, ARMNHMR, and look out for BigXthaPlug Memorial Weekend.

Downtown Vegas/Fremont Street

If you like partying, but a relentless EDC weekend or aggressive clubbing on the strip aren't your vibe, downtown Las Vegas might just be your savior. You can get down and dirty at bar/clubs without the hassle and price tags of the strip, plus drinks are cheaper too. And if you need some air, you can always walk through the Fremont Street Experience and have a blast and find some trouble. Some spots to check out — Discopussy, Commonwealth and We All Scream.

Palindrome Wedding

Meet your rave bae on the dance floor and looking to get hitched? May 25, 2025, might be the perfect day to do it — it's anticipated to be a highly popular wedding date, as 5-2-5-2-5 is a palindrome that reads the same backward and forwards. The same will be the case for any day between Tuesday, May 20, and Thursday, May 29.

This is a terrible idea of course, but could make for a cute story to tell your cyborg offspring in like 30 years after the AI apocalypse. 🤖

THE ATOMIC MUSEUM IN LAS VEGAS SOLVES THE MYSTERY BEHIND MISS ATOMIC BOMB

BY MICHELE STUEVEN

After 25 years of exhaustive research and investigative effort, historian and founding Atomic Museum member Robert Friedrichs has uncovered the true identity of the woman behind one of the most iconic photographs of the Atomic Age, Miss Atomic Bomb.

The unforgettable image, captured by Las Vegas News Bureau photographer Don English and released on May 24, 1957, coincided with Operation Plumbbob at the Nevada Test Site. The photo features a beaming Copa showgirl in the Nevada desert wearing a mushroom cloud swimsuit, her arms stretched triumphantly toward the sky.

The mushroom cloud had become the defining visual symbol of the atomic bomb, a striking and dramatic representation of nuclear power. From the earliest tests at Enewetak Atoll to the Nevada Test Site, the sight of the billowing cloud became synonymous with the era's scientific and military advancements. Recognizing the power of this imagery, English's team crafted a cotton mushroom cloud and attached it to the front of the showgirl's swimsuit, transforming her into Miss Atomic Bomb.

"Las Vegas played a vibrant and unique role in the Atomic Age, and Miss Atomic Bomb has always been a symbol of that era's colorful history," says Joseph Kent, deputy director and curator at the Atomic Museum.

The photograph symbolizes the convergence of Cold War culture, science and the burgeoning entertainment industry of Las Vegas. Recognized in hundreds of publications worldwide, the photo helped cement Las Vegas as a cultural epicenter of the Atomic Age. For 70 years the photo of Anna Lee Mahoney of the Bronx, New York circulated around the world, drawing millions to the Nevada desert.

Although the subject of the photograph was long identified as Lee A. Merlin, her true identity has long been shrouded in mystery. Through the assistance of a professional detective agency, Friedrichs uncovered conclusive evidence linking two names to a single social security number. This evidence, supported by birth records and communication with a living relative, revealed that Lee A. Merlin was actually a stage name for Mahoney.

"She was selected at random to be in one of the series of publicity pictures they were taking at the time, nobody knew the names of these strip regulars," the Vegas-born Friedrichs, who grew up with the nuclear programs in Las Vegas and the media hypes that were used to market the desert town, tells LA Weekly. "She was using a stage name, which was common practice at the time," he says. "It took years to work through that and find a family member that knew her real name. They had no idea that she was Miss Atomic Bomb and had never seen the photo before. In discussions the distant cousins provided her maiden name, so I had something to work with there. She had no children. I felt it was important for other family members to know what her contribution was to the city of Las Vegas."

Mahoney, born Aug. 14, 1927, trained in ballet and modern dance under Madame Bronislava Nijinska in Los Angeles before performing in various shows and musicals under the stage name Lee Merlin. By 1957, she performed as lead dancer at the Sands Hotel Copa showroom in Las Vegas, where she participated in the now-iconic Las Vegas News Bureau photoshoot. In 1962, she married and later moved to Hawaii, where she worked as a mental health counselor. In the late 1990s, she relocated to Santa Cruz, California, and worked for the Cabrillo College Foundation, raising funds for student scholarships. She passed away in 2001 after battling cancer.

"I had started the search, hoping that she would still be alive and interested in coming to the grand opening of the museum," says Friedrichs, "but unfortunately she had just passed, which we didn't know until last year. She had no idea of the impact she had on the marketing of Las Vegas."

To honor the discovery and its 20th anniversary, the Smithsonian-affiliated museum will display a temporary exhibit dedicated to Friedrichs' search and ultimate discovery of the iconic figure's real identity, as well as the image's evolution through the years. Organized in collaboration with the Las Vegas Archives, which today maintains the Las Vegas News Bureau's collection in conjunction with the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority, the exhibit is planned for a June debut.
